Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—Two grain mill employees were killed today and $125,000 damage was done by an explosion and fire on the W. T. Devereaux Grain Company's property.

Harold Barnett, 25, and Phil Olson, 32, both of Minneapolis, were working in the mill before the explosion and had not been seen since the fire although searchers were unable to find their bodies in the ruins.

Witnesses of the blast said the roof of the elevator was lifted 100 feet in the air while the walls crumbled under the pressure. The building was a wooden structure about 100 feet high, 200 feet long and 70 feet wide.

The concussion of the explosion jarred the neighborhood of the elevator for miles around. A string of box cars on a siding near the mill was endangered and only the hurried efforts of a train crew which pulled them away, saved them from flames. Firemen were successful in extinguishing flames which spread to a nearby elevator of the Union Elevator Co.

Devereaux Company officials said the mill had just begun its first grinding of fall grain.

Cloquet, Minn., Aug. 26.—Explosion of an acetylene tank killed Harold Randalin, 16, and a fire that followed destroyed mill B of the Northwest Paper Co. and seriously injured two women yesterday. The boy was killed when a flying fragment of metal broke his neck.

LEADERS PARLEY
IN MILK STRIKESEEK TO STAMP OUT VIOLENCE
IN KANSAS CITY,
MISSOURI

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—While leaders in Kansas City's milk strike called a parley to stamp out violence, the chief of guards employed by city wholesalers to combat attacks on milk trucks announced he had received "a death threat" today.

David Hawley, employed by Kansas City milk distributors to protect their trucks from raids allegedly inspired by suburban dairymen who seek a higher wholesale price, said he was told he would be "put on the spot" unless he withdrew the guards.

"The death threat came to me by telephone," Hawley said. "I told the man who called to go to hell. No campaign of terrorism can stop the milk supply to Kansas City. We will bring in the milk and will not be worried by gangsters' threats."

Hawley commands the guards who ride with drivers of trucks picking up raw milk from dairymen who failed to join the strike. The trucks haul the milk through hostile farm territory to the city pasteurizing and delivering plants.

Several of these trucks have been dumped or fired upon by snipers since the Rural Milk Producers' Association served notice on city plants that the latter would be boycotted until the demand for a price increase was met.

Meanwhile, the executive committee of the producers' association called a meeting for 10 A. M. today with the intent of investigating such instances and to stop depredations.

FIND SQUIRREL
SWIMMING IN LAKE

Minneapolis, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—This was the fish story R. C. McKenna and George Fieldhouse, both of Minneapolis, were telling today about their excursion at Lake Minnetonka.

"Why I saw a fish jump over there," said McKenna as he pointed a half mile from shore.

"Why, it's swimming on the surface," Fieldhouse countered. "That's odd."

Surprising the fishermen, the animal walked up McKenna's car, into the boat and collapsed. It was a squirrel.

She had on green shoes, green socks rolled to the ankles, short trunks and a pink silk blouse.

ACROSS 2 STATES

Elkhorn, Wis., Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—Claude Dellinger, 27, a demented farm hand and part-time student of psychology, told today of his love for Mary Jane Foster, 10, whom he kidnaped, and pleaded with authorities to be sentenced to death for his crime.

The child, who had been held captive in Dellinger's automobile for two days while he fled across two states, said the farm hand had been kind to her but that she was hungry. Mary Jane only had candy and berries to eat because Dellinger was afraid to stop and buy food.

"I don't care what happens to me if I can't have Mary Jane," the farm hand sobbed. "It would be kindness to hang me. I only took Mary Jane because I loved her."

Then he talked incoherently of love and psychology. Deputies learned he had studied a book entitled "Self Mastery Through Understanding," and had contemplated taking a course in psychology.

Dellinger was to be taken back today to Valparaiso, Ind., near where Mary Jane's family, by whom he was employed for five years, lives. He readily admitted the kidnapping and Mary Jane told the details.

"Claude always was nice to me when he worked on our farm," the child said. "He stayed for supper at our house Saturday night and after Dad and Mama went to visit a neighbor he took me to Malden to buy me candy."

"Then we went riding again and pretty soon I went to sleep. Claude told me the next day that we were in Wisconsin, near Lake Como. All day we walked around Lake Como and at night I slept in the car and Claude slept on the ground."

The man and girl were brought here from Lake Geneva last night by Deputy Al Exner after a motorist reported seeing them near there. The child was taken home by Mrs. James Mason, wife of the sheriff, given clean clothing and food.

Denied a plea that he be allowed to kiss Mary Jane good-bye, Dellinger was placed in the county jail. He said he would not fight extradition to Indiana but that he was afraid he would be lynched if taken to Valparaiso.

Possemen, armed with shot guns, scythes and clubs, had searched swamps and woods near Valparaiso for the farm hand, believing he might harm the child. A note signed by Dellinger and found on the Foster farm had aroused fears. It read:

"I'm in love with the girl and am taking her with me. They have been keeping us apart, but now I've got her. I will kill her if police are notified, but she will not be harmed otherwise."

New York, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—In an old Dornier-Wahl flying boat, Capt. Wolfgang Von Gronau and three companions today completed a flight from Germany to the United States when they landed a few hundred yards off the statue of liberty.

Halifax, Nova Scotia, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—Capt. Wolfgang Von Gronau and his three companions departed in their veteran Dornier-Wahl seaplane today, bound for New York harbor and the end of their flight from Germany.

With the same unconcern that marked their quiet flight across the Atlantic ocean to the American coast, the German aviators started the 600-mile flight to New York at 10:45 A. M. today.

The German plane, which arrived yesterday after a flight via Iceland, Greenland, Labrador and Queensport, was fueled at Bedford Basin before departing on the last stage of the trans-Atlantic venture.

Rising from the Basin, the big ship flew over the city and then turned southward over the harbor. The weather was clearing rapidly after dense fog that hampered the flight here from Labrador and conditions were fair. There was a slight breeze.

A Moth plane from Halifax rose to accompany the German plane on the first few miles of its trip.

Capt. Von Gronau cleared at the customs house for New York before boarding the plane.

Capt. Von Gronau was expected to bring his plane down in New York harbor, near the statue of liberty, late in the afternoon. He described the flight from Germany which started a week ago yesterday, as a "trial flight" such as is customary for students at the aviation school which he conducts in Germany.

The flight was considered remarkable inasmuch as the northern route followed often offers serious weather hazards, such as the thick fog which forced the Dornier craft down at Queensport en route from Cartwright, Labrador. Capt. Von Gronau and his companions, however, made steady and almost uninterrupted progress across the ocean.

Halifax, Nova Scotia, Aug. 26.—Capt. Wolfgang Von Gronau and his three German flying companions were only a day's flight away from their goal—New York—today.

Capt. Von Gronau and his companions landed here yesterday after a short flight from Sheet Harbor, Nova Scotia, where fog forced them to land while flying from Queensport, Nova Scotia.

Capt. Von Gronau was accompanied by E. Ximmer, second pilot; F. Albraecht, radio operator, and E. Heack, mechanic.

The four young aviators began their flight at Sylt, Germany, nine days ago as though they were going merely on a day's outing. They flew first to Faroe Islands, and thence to Iceland where they hinted they would turn back to Germany.

Instead, they surprised Ivigut, Greenland, by landing there for a night, and after refueling took off once more for Cartwright, Labrador. Fog prevented them from flying direct to New York from there, and they landed at Queensport, whence they made a fresh start only to be halted again by fog at Sheet Harbor.

Captain Von Gronau said his plans after reaching New York were not definite, and he expected to "await orders" there before proceeding elsewhere.

Striking Dressmakers in
New York Clash With Police

New York, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—Police reserves and a crowd of about 1,000 striking dressmakers clashed in the garment district today.

Several of the strikers, many of them girls, were reported to have been injured when police broke up the strikers' demonstration.

When police ordered the strikers not to congregate in front of their places of employment, the crowd rushed police. A committee went to the West 30th street police station to protest against what they charged was unnecessary violence by police. More than 8,000 dressmakers and raincoat makers are out on strike, which began this morning.

By J. C. AUSTIN

Curtiss-Wright Airport, Chicago, Aug. 26.—Four European fliers participating in the 1930 "Olympiad of Air," and, incidentally, adding more to their share of thrills to the show, have agreed that Americans are "air-minded."

The quartet, Marcel Doret, France; Marshal Pietro Colombo, Italy; Flight Lieut. R. L. Atherly, Great Britain, and Captain Fritz Loose, Germany, were brought to the national air races by Al Williams, former navy ace, who toured Europe to select the best fliers the nations there could boast.

Doret, who has been flying since 1918, expressed great admiration for the American fliers.

"I have been particularly impressed by the marvelous skill and the precise piloting of the army and navy planes at this meet," said the small Frenchman. "I admire very much the way in which America has taken to aviation."

Colombo, the daring Italian selected by his government to represent his country in the races, was impressed likewise.

"I did not imagine for a moment that your country had gone so far ahead in flying activities. I predict that in a few years the United States will be far ahead of all other countries in aviation development."

Colombo was loud in his praise of the courage of the army fliers, adding that the United States led the world in aerial military forces.

Loose, pilot of the Junkers organization in Germany, said that in Europe it would not be possible to stage an

Los Angeles, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Minnie A. Kennedy, surrounded by $100 worth of flowers sent by her evangelist daughter, Aimee Semple McPherson, indicated today that the family quarrel is all over—except for one little detail.

"I shall insist," Mrs. Kennedy said, "that sister pay for my two nasal operations, even if I have to sue."

Mrs. Kennedy has charged she received the injuries to her nose in altercation with her daughter. Mrs. McPherson insists the injury was received when her mother "threw herself on the floor in a tantrum."

As for the flowers, Mrs. Kennedy sniffed.

"I would rather receive one little crushed rose from Aimee herself than all these." She apparently referred to the fact that several of the baskets contained the cards of Emma Schaeffer, Mrs. McPherson's secretary and confidant, and other persons connected with Angelus Temple.

Mrs. Kennedy is in Brentwood sanitarium and her daughter is in the Malibu Beach cottage which she rents at $250 a month, recovering from a nervous breakdown.

W. C. Caldwell, secretary of the Temple, announced last night, shortly after the flowers were sent to Mrs. Kennedy, that an "official statement explaining everything" will be issued soon.

air race of such proportions as this "Olympiad of Air," because the average European is not as interested in aviation development as the average American.

Lieut. Atherly was more outspoken in his opinions of American birdmen, and more critical of the service.

"I think that you have developed your transport and civilian flying to a remarkable degree. Where you Americans have any number of organized companies flying chartered routes, we in England have no transport companies."

"On the other hand, I believe that Great Britain is far ahead in matters of army flying. Your service and its fliers suffer greatly because of insufficient researches into the problems of service plane design and requirements. Your service men are, however, to be commended for their showing at this meet."

FIRST TALKIE, "THE UN-
HOLY THREE"By GEORGE H. BEALE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 26.—Lon Chaney, the screen's "man of a thousand faces," died here today.

The end came with a hemorrhage of the throat at St. Vincent's hospital, where he was taken last Wednesday when he became seriously ill.

Just a few minutes before his death he was conversing quietly with members of his family.

Although it was known that the noted character actor was suffering from carcinoma of the bronchial tubes and that his life was to be shortened by that form of cancer, his passing was unexpected.

Physicians did not believe he could live more than several months, but they considered that he was temporarily out of danger when a blood transfusion was made successfully after a hemorrhage last Saturday.

Mrs. Chaney and their son, Creighton, were with the actor when the hemorrhage started.

They immediately called Dr. John C. Webster but Chaney already was beyond medical aid.

News of the actor's serious illness first was generally known in the screen colony shortly after he finished work on his initial talking picture, "The Unholy Three."

He had planned to take a long vacation before working again but instead hastened to New York to consult with specialists about his throat ailment.

Apparently much improved, he returned from the east three weeks ago and went to his cabin in the high Sierras.

The first of three hemorrhages forced him to enter the hospital last Wednesday. His condition was regarded as critical but when blood transfusions were successful, optimistic reports were given out.

Chaney rose from the ranks of the extras and his work in "The Miracle Man" definitely established him as a film star.

Always he has experimented with make-up—even when he was a scene shifter.

"I just liked to putter around with that fool stuff," he often related, "and I found out I could do some rather good stuff with it."

Screen producers also learned that Chaney "could do some rather good stuff" with make-up and he became the greatest of all make-up artists as he registered one hit after another in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "The Phantom of the Opera," "Laugh Clown, Laugh," "While the City Sleeps," "West of Zanzibar" and others.

WOULD LIKE FIRST
CLASS UNINHABITED
SOUTH SEA ISLAND

New York, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—If anyone knows of a first class uninhabited island in the South Seas, Alain Gerbault would be glad to hear from him.

Gerbault, who gained fame for himself and France first as a tennis player and then as a sailor, wants to establish a new "super-race" and a new culture on that island.

"What I want to find is an uninhabited island in the South Seas about 1,000 miles east of Samoa," Gerbault said. France has a protectorate over some of these islands and I would like to select one of these.

"Here I will settle down for the remainder of my days, bringing my own natives from other islands. I will select the youngest, strongest and handiest—an dthey are a handsome people—and start a super-race of natives. We will live a harmonious life and I will try to raise a new standard of art and culture in that far-away land."

Gerbault's dream has progressed to the stage where he is building a yacht in which to seek the Utopian Isle. The boat will be somewhat similar to Firecrest, in which he sailed alone around the world.

Details of government, laws, taxes, and the like have not yet been worked out, Gerbault said.

PRESIDENT'S LEADERSHIP
IS BEFORE PEOPLEHIS POLICIES AND ACCOMPLISH-
MENTS TO AFFECT CONGRES-
SIONAL ELECTIONSBy PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Aug. 26.—President Hoover has been offered as the republican issue in the congressional election campaign, apparently with his own knowledge and consent.

In a comprehensive radio speech last night, Senator Simeon Fess of Ohio, new chairman of the republican national committee, made clear that he considered the president's leadership, policies and accomplishments the particular question before the people in the election of the new congress.

The Ohio senator cited in detail the enactment of the farm relief and tariff laws and the organization work done by the president to meet the business and drought situations. All the accomplishments of the party he laid at the door of the chief executive whom he called "The engineer, the builder, the leader," possessing "transcendental ability as an organizer."

Although he had announced previously he did not consider prohibition a campaign issue, Fess praised Mr. Hoover's "strong stand" on enforcement. It was the first mention of the subject in the national phase of the fight for control of congress.

The speech's contents were carefully guarded by the republican publicity bureau until shortly before Fess went on the air. This was done to prevent democratic publicity headquarters from delivering an immediate counter-attack, such as the republicans delivered to Shouse before he finished speaking last Monday night.

The economic depression, Fess said, is the result of "world wide speculation" and not the fault of the administration.

"The administration made every effort through the federal reserve board," he said, "to warn against the speculation mania, but its impetus was beyond all control, and the inevitable crash came in the collapse of stock exchange prices with losses to thousands of innocent persons."

Mr. Hoover's leadership, he added, saved the collapse from being much worse.

A sound farm relief law was enacted, Fess said. The tariff, he contended, was in the interest of America and against foreign interests. Inland waterways, the London arms treaty and child welfare improvement he also listed among the achievements of the president.

While he was speaking, the democratic publicity headquarters here announced Senator Connally, democrat, Texas, would speak over the same radio network next Monday night on "Spokesman Fess and the Grundy Tariff."

"DOUBLE STANDARD OF DEATH" ISSUEYOUNG MAN'S PRIOR CLAIM TO RESPIRATOR SAVES LIFE AS
WOMAN DIES

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—A sick young man's prior claim to a one-respirator machine in a local hospital and the subsequent death of a young woman whom doctors refused to substitute for the male patient aroused a heated controversy here today over a "double standard of death."

While many claimed that on account of her sex, the woman should have been saved, others contended the fact that he was five years younger and had been offered the advantages of the apparatus first entitled the man to the consideration, which meant life.

The tragic situation arose on last Thursday when Irving S. Johnson, 25, an athlete, was placed under the Drinker respirator in the children's hospital here to force artificial air into a chest tortured by restriction caused by infantile paralysis. A short time later Miss Mabel McClough, 30, suffering from respiratory paralysis, was also brought in critically ill.

The doctors faced the decision of removing Johnson, married and the father of a 14-month-old baby, and substituting Miss McClough, unmarried.

The medical man hesitated, debated and finally reached the decision of keeping Johnson, whose life was felt to be assured, under the "artificial lung."

Miss McClough died a short time later in extreme agony.

To counteract the wave of criticism that arose in certain parts, the doctors declared they had taken into full consideration their belief that Johnson's recovery, under the machine, was a practical certainty, while it was not known whether the woman would live or not.

With the same unconcern that marked their quiet flight across the Atlantic ocean to the American coast, the German aviators started the 600-mile flight to New York at 10:45 A. M. today.

The German plane, which arrived yesterday after a flight via Iceland, Greenland, Labrador and Queensport, was fueled at Bedford Basin before departing on the last stage of the trans-Atlantic venture.

Rising from the Basin, the big ship flew over the city and then turned southward over the harbor. The weather was clearing rapidly after dense fog that hampered the flight here from Labrador and conditions were fair. There was a slight breeze.

A Moth plane from Halifax rose to accompany the German plane on the first few miles of its trip.

Capt. Von Gronau cleared at the customs house for New York before boarding the plane.

Capt. Von Gronau was expected to bring his plane down in New York harbor, near the statue of liberty, late in the afternoon. He described the flight from Germany which started a week ago yesterday, as a "trial flight" such as is customary for students at the aviation school which he conducts in Germany.

The flight was considered remarkable inasmuch as the northern route followed often offers serious weather hazards, such as the thick fog which forced the Dornier craft down at Queensport en route from Cartwright, Labrador. Capt. Von Gronau and his companions, however, made steady and almost uninterrupted progress across the ocean.

Halifax, Nova Scotia, Aug. 26.—Capt. Wolfgang Von Gronau and his three German flying companions were only a day's flight away from their goal—New York—today.

Capt. Von Gronau and his companions landed here yesterday after a short flight from Sheet Harbor, Nova Scotia, where fog forced them to land while flying from Queensport, Nova Scotia.

Capt. Von Gronau was accompanied by E. Ximmer, second pilot; F. Albraecht, radio operator, and E. Heack, mechanic.

The four young aviators began their flight at Sylt, Germany, nine days ago as though they were going merely on a day's outing. They flew first to Faroe Islands, and thence to Iceland where they hinted they would turn back to Germany.

Instead, they surprised Ivgit, Greenland, by landing there for a night, and after refueling took off once more for Cartwright, Labrador. Fog prevented them from flying direct to New York from there, and they landed at Queensport, whence they made a fresh start only to be halted again by fog at Sheet Harbor.

Captain Von Gronau said his plans after reaching New York were not definite, and he expected to "await orders" there before proceeding elsewhere.

Striking Dressmakers in New York Clash With Police

New York, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—Police reserves and a crowd of about 1,000 striking dressmakers clashed in the garment district today.

Several of the strikers, many of them girls, were reported to have been injured when police broke up the strikers' demonstration.

When police ordered the strikers not to congregate in front of their places of employment, the crowd rushed police. A committee went to the West 20th street police station to protest against what they charged was unnecessary violence by police. More than 8,000 dressmakers and raincoat makers are out on strike, which began this morning.

EUROPEANS AGREE AMERICANS ARE "AIR-MINDED"

FOUR OF EUROPE'S FLIERS PAR-TICIPATING IN "OLYMPIAD OF AIR" AT CHICAGO

EXPRESS GREAT ADMIRATION
FOR THEIR AMERICAN COLLEAGUES

Curtis-Wright Airport, Chicago, Aug. 26.—Four European fliers participating in the 1930 "Olympiad of Air," and, incidentally, adding more than their share of thrills to the show, have agreed that Americans are "air-minded."

The quartet, Marcel Doret, France; Marshal Pietro Colombo, Italy; Flight Lieut. R. L. Atcherly, Great Britain, and Captain Fritz Loose, Germany, were brought to the national air races by Al Williams, former navy ace, who toured Europe to select the best fliers the nations there could boast.

Doret, who has been flying since 1918, expressed great admiration for the American fliers.

"I have been particularly impressed by the marvelous skill and the precise piloting of the army and navy planes at this meet," said the small Frenchman. "I admire very much the way in which America has taken to aviation."

Colombo, the daring Italian selected by his government to represent his country in the races, was impressed likewise.

"I did not imagine for a moment that your country had gone so far ahead in flying activities. I predict that in a few years the United States will be far ahead of all other countries in aviation development."

Colombo was loud in his praise of the courage of the army fliers, adding that the United States led the world in aerial military forces.

Loose, pilot of the Junkers organization in Germany, said that in Europe it would not be possible to stage an

FAMILY QUARREL IS OVER WITH MA KENNEDY

MOTHER HAS NO FURTHER
ARGUMENTS WITH EVANGELIST DAUGHTER

ONLY RIFT IS THAT TWO NASAL OPERATIONS SHOULD BE PAID FOR

Los Angeles, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Minnie A. Kennedy, surrounded by $100 worth of flowers sent by her evangelist daughter, Aimee Semple McPherson, indicated today that the family quarrel is all over—except for one little detail.

"I shall insist," Mrs. Kennedy said, "that sister pay for my two nasal operations, even if I have to sue."

Mrs. Kennedy has charged she received the injuries to her nose in altercation with her daughter. Mrs. McPherson insists the injury was received when her mother "threw herself on the floor in a tantrum."

As for the flowers, Mrs. Kennedy sniffed.

"I would rather receive one little crushed rose from Aimee herself than all these," she apparently referred to the fact that several of the baskets contained the cards of Emma Schaefer, Mrs. McPherson's secretary and confidant, and other persons connected with Angelus Temple.

Mrs. Kennedy is in Brentwood sanitarium and her daughter is in the Malibu Beach cottage which she rents at $250 a month, recovering from a nervous breakdown.

W. C. Caldwell, secretary of the Temple, announced last night, shortly after the flowers were sent to Mrs. Kennedy, that an "official statement explaining everything" will be issued soon.

air race of such proportions as this "Olympiad of Air," because the average European is not as interested in aviation development as the average American.

Lieut. Atcherly was more outspoken in his opinions of American birdmen, and more critical of the service.

"I think that you have developed your transport and civilian flying to a remarkable degree. Where you Americans have any number of organized companies flying chartered routes, we in England have no transport companies."

"On the other hand, I believe that Great Britain is far ahead in matters of army flying. Your service and its fliers suffer greatly because of insufficient researches into the problems of service plane design and requirements. Your service men are, however, to be commended for their showing at this meet."

APPARENTLY WITH HIS OWN CONSENT GIVEN

SENATOR FESS MAKES CLEAR
PRESIDENT'S LEADERSHIP IS BEFORE PEOPLE

HIS POLICIES AND ACCOMPLISH-
MENTS TO AFFECT CONGRES-SIONAL ELECTIONS

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Aug. 26.—President Hoover has been offered as the republican issue in the congressional election campaign, apparently with his own knowledge and consent.

In a comprehensive radio speech last night, Senator Simeon Fess of Ohio, new chairman of the republican national committee, made clear that he considered the president's leadership, policies and accomplishments the particular question before the people in the election of the new congress.

The Ohio senator cited in detail the enactment of the farm relief and tariff laws and the organization work done by the president to meet the business and drought situations. All the accomplishments of the party he laid at the door of the chief executive whom he called "The engineer, the builder, the leader," possessing "transcendental ability as an organizer."

Although he had announced previously he did not consider prohibition a campaign issue, Fess praised Mr. Hoover's "strong stand" on enforcement. It was the first mention of the subject in the national phase of the fight for control of congress.

The speech's contents were carefully guarded by the republican publicity bureau until shortly before Fess went on the air. This was done to prevent democratic publicity headquarters from delivering an immediate counter-attack, such as the republicans delivered to Shouse before he finished speaking last Monday night.

The economic depression, Fess said, is the result of "world wide speculation" and not the fault of the administration.

"The administration made every effort through the federal reserve board," he said, "to warn against the speculation mania, but its impetus was beyond all control, and the inevitable crash came in the collapse of stock exchange prices with losses to thousands of innocent persons."

Mr. Hoover's leadership, he added, saved the collapse from being much worse.

A sound farm relief law was enacted, Fess said. The tariff, he contended, was in the interest of America and against foreign interests. Inland waterways, the London arms treaty and child welfare improvement, he also listed among the achievements of the president.

While he was speaking, the democratic publicity headquarters here announced Senator Connally, democrat, Texas, would speak over the same radio network next Monday night on "Spokesman Fess and the Grundy Tariff."

"DOUBLE STANDARD OF DEATH" ISSUE

YOUNG MAN'S PRIOR CLAIM TO RESPIRATOR SAVES LIFE AS
WOMAN DIES

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—A sick young man's prior claim to a one-respirator machine in a local hospital and the subsequent death of a young woman whose doctors refused to substitute for the male patient aroused a heated controversy here today over a "double standard of death."

While many claimed that on account of her sex, the woman should have been saved, others contended the fact that he was five years younger and had been offered the advantages of the apparatus first entitled the man to the consideration, which meant life.

The tragic situation arose on last Thursday when Irving S. Johnson, 25, an athlete, was placed under the Drinker respirator in the children's hospital here to force artificial air into a chest tortured by restrictions caused by infantile paralysis. A short time later Miss Mabel McCough, 30, suffering from respiratory paralysis, was also brought in critically ill.

The doctors faced the decision of removing Johnson, married and the father of a 14-month-old baby, and substituting Miss McCough, unmarried.

The medical man hesitated, debated and finally reached the decision of keeping Johnson, whose life was felt to be assured, under the "artificial lung."

Miss McCough died a short time later in extreme agony.

To counteract the wave of criticism that arose in certain parts, the doctors declared they had taken into full consideration their belief that Johnson's recovery, under the machine, was a practical certainty, while it was not known whether the woman would live or not.

LON CHANEY DIES OF THROAT AFFECTION TODAY

"MAN OF A THOUSAND FACES"
SUCCUMBS TO LONG STAND-ING MALADY

HAD RECENTLY FINISHED HIS FIRST TALKIE, "THE UN-HOLY THREE"

By GEORGE H. BEALE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 26.—Lon Chaney, the screen's "man of a thousand faces," died here today.

The end came with a hemorrhage of the throat at St. Vincent's hospital, where he was taken last Wednesday when he became seriously ill.

Just a few minutes before his death he was conversing quietly with members of his family.

Although it was known that the noted character actor was suffering from carcinoma of the bronchial tubes and that his life was to be shortened by that form of cancer, his passing was unexpected.

Physicians did not believe he could live more than several months, but they considered that he was temporarily out of danger when a blood transfusion was made successfully after a hemorrhage last Saturday.

Mrs. Chaney and their son, Creighton, were with the actor when the hemorrhage started.

They immediately called Dr. John C. Webster but Chaney already was beyond medical aid.

News of the actor's serious illness first was generally known in the screen colony shortly after he finished work on his initial talking picture, "The Unholy Three."

He had planned to take a long vacation before working again but instead hastened to New York to consult with specialists about his throat ailment.

Apparently much improved, he returned from the east three weeks ago and went to his cabin in the high Sierras.

The first of three hemorrhages forced him to enter the hospital last Wednesday. His condition was regarded as critical but when blood transfusions were successful, optimistic reports were given out.

Chaney rose from the ranks of the extras and his work in "The Miracle Man" definitely established him as a film star.

Always he has experimented with make-up—even when he was a scene shifter.

"I just liked to putter around with that fool stuff," he often related, "and I found out I could do some rather good stuff with it."

Screen producers also learned that Chaney "could do some rather good stuff" with make-up and he became the greatest of all make-up artists as he registered one hit after another in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "The Phantom of the Opera," "Laugh Clown, Laugh," "While the City Sleeps," "West of Zanzibar" and others.

WOULD LIKE FIRST CLASS UNINHABITED SOUTH SEA ISLAND

New York, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—If anyone knows of a first class uninhabited island in the South Seas, Alain Gerbault would be glad to hear from him.

Gerbault, who gained fame for himself and France first as a tennis player and then as a sailor, wants to establish a new "super-race" and a new culture on that island.

"What I want to find is an uninhabited island in the South Seas about 1,000 miles east of Samoa," Gerbault said. France has a protectorate over some of these islands and I would like to select one of these.

"Here I will settle down for the remainder of my days, bringing my own natives from other islands. I will select the youngest, strongest and handiest—an dthey are a handsome people—and start a super-race of natives. We will live a harmonious life and I will try to raise a new standard of art and culture in that far-away land."

Gerbault's dream has progressed to the stage where he is building a yacht in which to seek the Utopian Isle. The boat will be somewhat similar to Firecrest, in which he sailed alone around the world.

Details of government, laws, taxes, and the like have not yet been worked out, Gerbault said.

SPEED UP PAY
LOADS IN PLANESAVIATIONS MOST IMPORTANT
MOVEMENT IS DIS-CUSSED

By CAPTAIN FRANK M. HAWKS
Transcontinental Speed Champion
(Written for the United Press)

Curtis-Wright Airport, Ill., Aug. 26.—Aviation's important move now must be the speeding up of pay loads in order to advance successfully and profitably.

The safety of flying has been assured, leaving only the conquering of the time element for a greater public support.

My sole purpose in being here and entering the Thompson speed race next Monday is because it will give me another chance to display speed.

While it is a race, to me it is the commercial practicability of speed that I am interested in. It is true there will be an exhibition of sportsmanship and no doubt it will be a lot of fun for those of us entered. Yet, I would get just as much kick out of being in the air alone.

My mystery ship, Texaco 13, is no mystery to me—that is in regard to what it can do. It has done much to teach me just what can be done with speed and commercial flying.

Admiral Byrd's talk the other evening of the N. A. A. banquet brings to mind the same contention I have harbored for some time. The tri-motored jobs have not shown improvement during the last two years comparable to that of the single-motored jobs.

We have much to learn about aviation yet. Safety, of course, was the first goal to be reached; now we have speed to overtake.

LOSS BY DROUGHT
IN FARM INCOMES
IS OVER-ESTIMATED

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 26.—(UP)—The reported loss in farm incomes on account of the drought in the United States has been over-estimated, in the opinion of Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board.

Legge gave special addresses here yesterday, including one at the Iowa State fair.

"There is a strong probability that the agricultural states of the upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys will yield almost as great, and in some instances greater farm incomes in 1930 than in 1929 if farmers in this region use good judgement and show a cooperative spirit," Legge said.

"There has been too much conversation and misinterpretation of facts regarding the drought," Legge declared. "This drought talk has resulted in the mistaken impression that the damage has been wide spread throughout the agricultural states, resulting in a serious decrease in farm incomes."

FORREST O'BRIEN
TO RETURN TO HIS OLD OCCUPATION

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 26.—(UP)—Forrest O'Brien, co-holder of the world's endurance refueling flight record, plans to return to his occupation of carrying passengers for fare Saturday, disappointed because "contracts calling for $37,000 for state fair appearances have turned out to be duds."

O'Brien said today that only one state fair appearance, that at Sedalia, Mo., had really been booked by William Pickens, promoter-manager of the endurance flight, and "Pickens was having a pipe dream when he announced booking at six state fairs."

Dale Jackson, who with O'Brien set the world's record of 647 hours here recently returned to St. Louis today from Minnesota. He has joined Pickens' traveling air circus and will appear at various fairs. He had nothing to say regarding O'Brien's comment.

St. Paul, Aug. 26.—(UP)—Dale Jackson, co-holder of the world endurance refueling flight record, will appear at the Minnesota state fair next week. His appearance has been one of the most advertised features of the fair.

SPEED UP PAY LOADS IN PLANES

AVIATIONS MOST IMPORTANT MOVEMENT IS DISCUSSED

By CAPTAIN FRANK M. HAWKS Transcontinental Speed Champion (Written for the United Press) Curtiss-Wright Airport, Ill., Aug. 26.—Aviation's important move now must be the speeding up of pay loads in order to advance successfully and profitably.

The safety of flying has been assured, leaving only the conquering of the time element for a greater public support.

My sole purpose in being here and entering the Thompson speed race next Monday is because it will give me another chance to display speed. While it is a race, to me it is the commercial practicability of speed that I am interested in. It is true there will be an exhibition of sportsmanship and no doubt it will be a lot of fun for those of us entered. Yet, I would get just as much kick out of being in the air alone.

My mystery ship, Texaco 13, is no mystery to me—that is in regard to what it can do. It has done much to teach me just what can be done with speed and commercial flying.

Admiral Byrd's talk the other evening of the N. A. A. banquet brings to mind the same contention I have harbored for some time. The tri-motored jobs have not shown improvement during the last two years comparable to that of the single-motored jobs.

We have much to learn about aviation yet. Safety, of course, was the first goal to be reached; now we have speed to overtake.

Barnes-Tollefson Wedding

LOSS BY DROUGHT IN FARM INCOMES IS OVER-ESTIMATED

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 26.—(UP)—The reported loss in farm incomes on account of the drought in the United States has been over-estimated, in the opinion of Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board.

Legge gave special addresses here yesterday, including one at the Iowa State fair.

"There is a strong probability that the agricultural states of the upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys will yield almost as great, and in some instances greater farm incomes in 1930 than in 1929 if farmers in this region use good judgment and show a cooperative spirit," Legge said.

"There has been too much conversation and misinterpretation of facts regarding the drought," Legge declared.

"This drought talk has resulted in the mistaken impression that the damage has been wide spread throughout the agricultural states; resulting in a serious decrease in farm incomes."

FIGHT FOREST FIRES NEARING TWO VILLAGES

TOIVOLA AND CULVAR MEN BATTLE TO CHECK FLAMES ADVANCE

WIVES AND CHILDREN PACK PORTABLE BELONGINGS INTO CARS AND WAGONS

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 26.—(UP)—While wives and children packed portable belongings into cars and wagons prepared for immediate flight, men of the villages of Toivola and Culvar fought a fierce forest fire that swept on toward the communities today.

The fire has already burned over more than 10 sections of land and is spreading past fire breaks. A crew of 175 men built back fires today in an effort to halt the march of the flames.

Rangers said there were two blazes in the district and that the danger would be great if the fires converged.

Fires in other northern sectors continued to burn slowly, but were reported under control. More than 3,000 men were in the field fighting the blazes, the state forestry department said.

A fire which already has burned over 12,000 acres in Aitkin county will be a serious menace to Hill City and Aitkin, if the wind freshens, woodsman said.

Tractors pulling gang plows were pressed into service to form fire breaks near the settlements.

Disastrous blazes were reported in the Marengo and Bad river districts of Wisconsin. Navigation of Great Lakes ore boats through the Apostle Islands was made hazardous by dense smoke.

Rains lessened the fire hazard in some sections of the upper Michigan peninsula yesterday but new flames sprouted through a timber area between Newberry and St. Ignace.

PHOTOGRAPH OF GANGSTER SENT BY WIRELESS

London, Aug. 26.—(UP)—Photographs of Jack (Legs) Diamond, American gangster, were sent from New York to Scotland Yard by wireless today in connection with reports that Diamond was en route to England.

The Evening News, in reporting a trans-Atlantic telephone conversation between a representative of the newspaper and Police Commissioner Mulrooney of New York, was obliged to print a glossary of gangland terms to enable readers to understand the conversation. The interview took up much of the paper's front page space.

Mulrooney was quoted as referring to Diamond as a "yella, sneakin', no-account, small time, cowardly little racketeer." The glossary defined the terms racketeer, bumped-off, thug, yella-livered, punk and bologney. It said bologney meant the same as bunk, or "nonsense." Apparently the newspaper referred to the slang word "bunk" which is not familiar in England.

NEW YORK CITY ADMINISTRATION IS INVESTIGATED

New York, Aug. 26.—(UP)—Another agency took a hand in the investigations of the New York city administration today as the result of a court order for inquiry into the magistracy courts in two boroughs.

Acting on a request of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, the appellate division of the supreme court placed Samuel Seabury, former justice of the court of appeals, in charge of an investigation of the inferior bench in Manhattan and the Bronx. Seabury is known as a scholar and crusader, and is regarded the foremost authority on the city's lower courts.

Seabury is expected to return from abroad Sept. 8 to take up the inquiry. It is a ill debated question whether he will be able to delve into the judgeship buying charges occupying the attention of Attorney General Hamilton Ward in another inquiry, but he is empowered to investigate possible criminal acts of magistrates.

DISCOVERY OF ANDREE AND COMPANIONS AND DIARY REMARKABLE

Oslo, Norway, Aug. 26.—(UP)—The discovery of (Sagamon) Auguste Andree and his two companions frozen in the Arctic ice, together with their diary of an attempted balloon flight to the north pole 33 years ago was described as "one of the most remarkable ever made" in a message from Adolf Hoel, famous explorer, today.

Hoel made his comment on the discovery in a message to the United Press from the steam trawler Veslekari, and praised especially the work of Dr. Gunnar Horn in discovering the frozen bodies.

Competitive bidding for exclusive publication rights of the diary has been so heavy that fantastic figures have been placed on its value. The latest suggestion was that it was worth 500,000 kroner ($134,000) provided it was completely legible to the last day Andree lived.

Wisdom of Folly

It fell upon a day that a certain erudite philosopher held discourse with an unquestionable fool, in the presence of a shorthand reporter, who used the same phonetic symbol for "F" and "Ph."

In transcribing his notes of the dialogue he attributed to the philosopher what had been said by the fool, and credited the fool with the utterance of the philosopher. Nobody noticed the difference. — Daily Chronicle, (London).

Indian, 60, and Worth $150,000, Gives Up Tent

Pawhuska, Okla.—John Stink, Osage Indian, has been persuaded to live under a roof, Stink is sixty years old and is worth $150,000.

He lived on his allotment about five miles south of Pawhuska in a tent until J. George Wright, Indian agent, persuaded Stink to occupy a small frame house built for him.

For the last ten years Stink has refused to visit Pawhuska and draw his tribal funds. Formerly he lived in an old frame building near the agency, but one morning while absent from home a policeman killed his four dogs. Stink turned his back on Pawhuska and never has been in town since that time. He lived alone until recently the Osage agency provided him with a Sioux Indian as housekeeper.

Ancient Flivver Likes Egg-nogs; It Runs, Too

San Francisco, Calif.—Harken to the tale of Lizzie, the egg eater. An ancient flivver which seems to be suffering from arteriosclerosis of the carburetor, cirrhosis of the differential and foundered gears, has been discovered by Dr. C. H. Cummings, San Francisco dentist.

Doctor Cummings declares the nursedriver brings the car daily to a grocery near his window, takes off the radiator cap, breaks three eggs and drops them in.

"Curious," he reflects, "but then perhaps it wouldn't be a bad idea if it developed a taste for beefsteaks. Think of the dental work necessary to outfit it with plates."

Housekeeper Leaves Estate to De Valera

Boston.—A housekeeper, who was known only as Bridget, has just died, leaving $1,600 to Eamonn De Valera, Dublin, Ireland. The rest of the residue of her estate, which is estimated to be $6,000, goes to Aidan's Gaelic school in Dublin.

CANADIAN WHEAT PRICE ANNOUNCED

INITIAL PAYMENTS ON 1930-31 WHEAT WILL BE 60 CENTS A BUSHEL

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 26.—(UP)—Initial payments by the Canadian wheat pools on 1930-31 wheat will be 60 cents a bushel, pool officials announced last night.

The announcement brought an end to negotiations which have continued more than two weeks between bankers and pool leaders. The conference ended in a victory for the bankers who had held out for a 60 cent advance against a request for 70 cents made by the pools.

The 60 cent price was made effective today until further notice on the basis of No. 1 Northern at Fort William.

The price is a drop of ten cents per bushel from the interim payment set July 15, cut-off date of the two crops. Initial rate payments were set at five cents higher than the July 15 figure and other grains will be on the same basis as the July 15 figures.

The wheat figure is 25 cents per bushel below the lowest mark previously noted in pool records and 40 cents below every payment but that for the 1928 crop.

The payment has always been $1.00 with the exception of 1928 when it was 85 cents.

Here and There Around the Northwest

(By United Press)

Red Wing, Minn., Aug. 26.—Lack of wind has added to difficulties of the drought-stricken farmers at Frontenac near here. Wind mills have been unable to operate and farmers today had to haul in their water as the last in storage was used up.

Stanley, N. D., Aug. 26.—Mountrail county farmers organized today under the name of the Farmers Union Co-operative Grain Company to lease a 45,000-bushel capacity elevator from the Arnold Grain Company for two years. The farmers thus will control both Stanley elevators.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Aug. 26.—Traffic deaths this year mounted to three today with the death of Herbert Fetter, 9, from injuries received in an automobile collision Sunday. The boy was going home from church when his father's car hit another one.

LOCOMOTIVE GRATES IN HOME FURNACE

Lennox Torrid Zone Has Many Features Besides Steel-riveted, Gas-tight Construction

The most durable type of grates in the world are used in the Torrid Zone Warm Air Furnace. They are of the special rocking design as used in locomotives and are controlled from the outside by a long-handled "lazy" shaker. Hardly more effort is required to shake them than is used in brushing the teeth. ## GILBERT FAMILY

CAR NEEDS NO GUIDE TO RUN IT

Peekskill, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(UP)—The Gilbert family automobile, like its predecessor, old Dobbin, knows how to get around town without being guided. Tom Gilbert started out to see his relatives yesterday and something went wrong with the steering gear. Left to itself, the family bus did the following:

Plunged down a steep grade into the porch of Cousin Robert Gilbert.

Rolled on and crashed against the front steps of Uncle Caleb Gilbert.

Still rolling, headed for a mailbox from which Brother Louis Gilbert, postman, was collecting letters, and knocked it over.

Aunt Mary Gilbert, who witnessed it all, frantically called the police department.

Nephew Chester Gilbert, an officer, responded. A hasty survey showed Brother Tom and the rest of the family excited, but unhurt.

Merger of Nine Canadian

Breweries Being Projected

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 26.—(UP)—Merger of nine Canadian breweries with total assets of $26,000,000 awaits only the ratifications of stockholders in the various concerns, it was announced today.

The corporation would be the second largest of its kind in the dominion and manufacture the greater part of Toronto's domestic beer.

BRACKETT BOUND OVER TO DISTRICT COURT

Shakopee, Minn., Aug. 26.—(UP)—L. C. Brackett, dog race promoter, was bound over to the Scott county district court today when his trial was to have started before Municipal Judge Theodore Weiland.

Brackett was charged with operating a lottery at the Savage dog race near here.

The district court will be held the fourth Monday of October in Shakopee. Pending the trial, Brackett is under $500 bond.

County Attorney H. A. Erwin contended that the selling of options and cashing them at the race track for an increased value after the dogs had won was a violation of the state's lottery laws.

FIGHT FOREST FIRES NEARING TWO VILLAGES

TOIVOLA AND CULVAR MEN BATTLE TO CHECK FLAMES ADVANCE

WIVES AND CHILDREN PACK PORTABLE BELONGINGS INTO CARS AND WAGONS

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 26.—(UP)—While wives and children packed portable belongings into cars and wagons prepared for immediate flight, men of the villages of Toivola and Culvar fought a fierce forest fire that swept on toward the communities today.

The fire has already burned over more than 10 sections of land and is spreading past fire breaks. A crew of 175 men built back fires today in an effort to halt the march of the flames. Rangers said there were two blazes in the district and that the danger would be great if the fires converged.

Fires in other northern sections continued to burn slowly, but were reported under control. More than 3,000 men were in the field fighting the blazes, the state forestry department said.

A fire which already has burned over 12,000 acres in Aitkin county will be a serious menace to Hill City and Aitkin, if the wind freshens, woodsman said.

Tractors pulling gang plows were pressed into service to form fire breaks near the settlements.

Disastrous blazes were reported in the Marengo and Bad river districts of Wisconsin. Navigation of Great Lakes ore boats through the Apostle Islands was made hazardous by dense smoke. Rains lessened the fire hazard in some sections of the upper Michigan peninsula yesterday but new flames sprouted through a timber area between Newberry and St. Ignace.

PHOTOGRAPH OF GANGSTER SENT BY WIRELESS

London, Aug. 26.—(UP)—Photographs of Jack (Legs) Diamond, American gangster, were sent from New York to Scotland Yard by wireless today in connection with reports that Diamond was en route to England.

The Evening News, in reporting a trans-Atlantic telephone conversation between a representative of the newspaper and Police Commissioner Mulrooney of New York, was obliged to print a glossary of gangland terms to enable readers to understand the conversation. The interview took up much of the paper's front page space. Mulrooney was quoted as referring to Diamond as a "yella, sneakin", no-account, small time, cowardly little racketeer." The glossary defined the terms racketeer, bumped-off, thug, yella-livered, punk and bologney. It said bologney meant the same as bunk, or "nonsense." Apparently the newspaper referred to the slang word "bunk" which is not familiar in England.

NEW YORK CITY ADMINISTRATION IS INVESTIGATED

New York, Aug. 26.—(UP)—Another agency took a hand in the investigations of the New York city administration today as the result of a court order for inquiry into the magistracy courts in two boroughs.

Acting on a request of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, the appellate division of the supreme court placed Samuel Seabury, former justice of the court of appeals, in charge of an investigation of the inferior bench in Manhattan and the Bronx. Seabury is known as a scholar and crusader, and is regarded the foremost authority on the city's lower courts.

Seabury is expected to return from abroad Sept. 8 to take up the inquiry. It is still a debated question whether he will be able to delve into the judgeship buying charges occupying the attention of Attorney General Hamilton Ward in another inquiry, but he is empowered to investigate possible criminal acts of magistrates.

DISCOVERY OF ANDREE AND COMPANIONS AND DIARY REMARKABLE

Oslo, Norway, Aug. 26.—(UP)—The discovery of Saamonn Auguste Andree and his two companions frozen in the Arctic ice, together with their diary of an attempted balloon flight to the north pole 33 years ago was described as "one of the most remarkable ever made" in a message from Adolf Hoel, famous explorer, today.

Hoel made his comment on the discovery in a message to the United Press from the steam trawler Veslekari, and praised especially the work of Dr. Gunnar Horn in discovering the frozen bodies.

Competitive bidding for exclusive publication rights of the diary has been so heavy that fantastic figures have been placed on its value. The latest suggestion was that it was worth 500,000 kroner ($134,000) provided it was completely legible to the last day Andree lived.

Wisdom of Folly

It fell upon a day that a certain erudite philosopher held discourse with an unquestionable fool, in the presence of a shorthand reporter, who used the same phonetic symbol for "F" and "Ph."

In transcribing his notes of the dialogue he attributed to the philosopher what had been said by the fool, and credited the fool with the utterance of the philosopher. Nobody noticed the difference. — Daily Chronicle (London).

Oh, little girl with eyes of blue
And heart so merry, kind and true,
May each glad hour bring joy to you
And fill your world with cheer!

Find you unselfish, thoughtful, sweet

And may you scatter sunshine gay
Along life's busy, happy way,
And hold your friendships dear.

Indian, 60, and Worth $150,000, Gives Up Tent

Pawhuska, Okla.—John Stink, Osage Indian, has been persuaded to live under a roof. Stink is sixty years old and is worth $150,000.

He lived on his allotment about five miles south of Pawhuska in a tent until J. George Wright, Indian agent, persuaded Stink to occupy a small frame house built for him.

For the last ten years Stink has refused to visit Pawhuska and draw his tribal funds. Formerly he lived in an old frame building near the agency, but one morning while absent from home a policeman killed his four dogs. Stink turned his back on Pawhuska and never has been in town since that time. He lived alone until recently the Osage agency provided him with a Sioux Indian as housekeeper.

Ancient Flivver Likes Egg-nogs; It Runs, Too

San Francisco, Calif.—Harken to the tale of Lizzie, the egg eater.

An ancient flivver which seems to be suffering from arteriosclerosis of the carburetor, cirrhosis of the differential and fouled gears, has been discovered by Dr. C. H. Cummings, San Francisco dentist.

Doctor Cummings declares the nursedriver brings the car daily to a grocery near his window, takes off the radiator cap, breaks three eggs and drops them in.

"Curious," he reflects, "but then perhaps it wouldn't be a bad idea if it developed a taste for beefsteaks. Think of the dental work necessary to outfit it with plates."

CANADIAN WHEAT PRICE ANNOUNCED

INITIAL PAYMENTS ON 1930-31 WHEAT WILL BE 60 CENTS A BUSHEL

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 26.—(UP)—Initial payments by the Canadian wheat pools on 1930-31 wheat will be 60 cents a bushel, pool officials announced last night.

The announcement brought an end to negotiations which have continued more than two weeks between bankers and pool leaders. The conference ended in a victory for the bankers who had held out for a 60 cent advance against a request for 70 cents made by the pools.

The 60 cent price was made effective today until further notice on the basis of No. 1 Northern at Fort William.

The price is a drop of ten cents per bushel from the interim payment set July 15, cut-off date of the two crops. Initial rate payments were set at five cents higher than the July 15 figure and other grains will be on the same basis as the July 15 figures.

The wheat figure is 25 cents per bushel below the lowest mark previously noted in pool records and 40 cents below every payment but that for the 1928 crop.

The payment has always been $100 with the exception of 1928 when it was 85 cents.

Thirst for Water

THE drought in many states has called to attention very forcibly the value of water and what thirst means to humans and animals.

Like those who have joked about some improbable disaster, and then met the dread reality, one hesitates, this summer, to use the facetious modern connotations of the word "thirst" says the New York Herald-Tribune.

Few words are more terrible, to men who have realized its primitive meaning. Thirst is not only sickness but torture. Hunger brings weakness and pain, cold is its own anodyne, heat strikes like lightning, but the torment of thirst grows hour by hour, though it seemed insupportable when it had begun.

It brings with it a peculiar horror, beyond that of other deprivations. It is almost impossible for a thirsty man to keep his tongue from dwelling to the point of madness upon cool waters, but the madness when it comes does not bring surcease, as in many afflictions. The gods could find no more cruel doom to visit upon Tantalus than thirst.

Whoever has lacked water when traveling in remote places, who remembers nights of fever, after an operation, when water was forbidden except in aggravating spoonfuls, can feel for the stricken cattle of the southwest, for the forest creatures which see familiar pools dried up, for city sparrows which find no puddles, for fish left gasping on the shore—for the dumb, bewildered and patient brute creation most of all.

These many years people have joked about thirst because they have never known it, but real thirst is a ghastly joke. No one ever felt true thirst for whisky—longing for alcohol, however intense, is only an appetite. But thirst for water, the punishment of Tantalus, remains the king of terrors, with whom one does not jest.

Health Insurance

HEALTH insurance is the only plan which will bring competent medical service within the reach of all, is the opinion of Dr. Harvey Smith, Winnipeg, president of the British Medical Association, as he spoke at Winnipeg at the convention of that body.

Sickness is one of the greatest factors militating against the worker. Long continued, it saps away his earnings and brings his family to want.

"The economic organization of medicine has not kept pace with its scientific progress. A prolific source of criticism arises from the failure of our profession to provide competent service to the various sections of the community under a financial plan that will meet the needs of every class of citizen," Smith said.

Some form of corporate medicine seems necessary if the profession is to meet the demands constantly raised, especially by citizens of rural districts, Smith said.

"It has been computed that thirty per cent of patients are attended without charge by the medical profession. The taxpayer views with complacency a system which relieves him of a vast responsibility. There is need of readjustment on the principle that 'the laborer is worthy of his hire'."

"In my judgment there is only one possible solution—health insurance," he said.

The insurance system would be satisfactory not only to the public but also to the medical and nursing professions and the hospitals, he said.

"Private practice must remain in the hands of the physician if the public is to receive the highest and best medical care. Any form of health insurance must provide for the retention of the private physician," he said.

Avoiding Forest and Grass Fires

WITH the woods as dry as tinder and the grass almost withered to a crisp, it seems almost foolish to caution persons to be careful with matches, cigarettes, and fire in any shape.

The forestry department is compelled to urge campers, tourists and others to be careful. Here are three points to be observed impartially by everybody:

Don't disregard a brush fire when you see it. Call a forest ranger. If you can't find him tell the nearest operator and she will report the fire.

Don't throw away lighted cigars or cigarettes in the woods or dry fields. These start many brush and timber blazes. Never throw them away without carefully extinguishing them.

Don't leave a camp fire. Put it out and be sure it's out before you leave.

The forestry department has never called attention to pop bottles. These inoffensive appearing bottles, drained of their contents, are tossed out indiscriminately. When lying in the right position to receive a full complement of the sun's rays, these bottles act like burning glasses and set fire to things. Be careful where you toss these bottles.

In town life, see that your chimney is kept clean and your heating plant renovated. Sparks from a chimney in this dry season can do untold damage. Inoffensive appearing grass fires can spread so quickly as to set fire to houses, fences, barns, etc.

One of the most unusual fire accidents occurred near Long Prairie last week. As John Westrell, aged 73, was driving his hay rake, his team ran away and the man was thrown to the ground in the loose hay. Sparks from his pipe ignited the hay and he was burned to death.

Fish Dying

THOUSANDS of whitefish in northern Minnesota lakes have been killed by the drought and consequent low water levels, and further aggravated by continued withdrawal of water. It is believed by many that the state will have to establish a closed netting season on the fish this fall.

At Sandy lake thousands of fish strew the beaches and game wardens are burying them. They are generally fine fish weighing 10 to 15 pounds. At Mille Lacs it is reported more than 10 tons of fish were gathered up by game wardens.

Heat and low water, it is claimed, have not been the only contributing factors to the death of the fish. Lack of wind is a cause, too, as reported in exchanges. Wind circulates the water in lakes and causes re-oxygenation of the deeper waters.

Thirst for Water

THE drought in many states has called to attention very forcibly the value of water and what thirst means to humans and animals.

Like those who have joked about some improbable disaster, and then met the dread reality, one hesitates, this summer, to use the facetious modern connotations of the word "thirst" says the New York Herald-Tribune.

Few words are more terrible, to men who have realized its primitive meaning. Thirst is not only sickness but torture. Hunger brings weakness and pain, cold is its own anodyne, heat strikes like lightning, but the torment of thirst grows hour by hour, though it seemed insupportable when it had but begun.

It brings with it a peculiar horror, beyond that of other deprivations. It is almost impossible for a thirsty man to keep his tongue from dwelling to the point of madness upon cool waters, but the madness when it comes does not bring surcease, as in many afflictions. The gods could find no more cruel doom to visit upon Tantalus than thirst.

Whoever has lacked water when traveling in remote places, who remembers nights of fever, after an operation, when water was forbidden except in aggravating spoonfuls, can feel for the stricken cattle of the southwest, for the forest creatures which see familiar pools dried up, for city sparrows which find no puddles, for fish left gasping on the shore—for the dumb, bewildered and patient brute creation most of all.

These many years people have joked about thirst because they have never known it, but real thirst is a ghastly joke. No one ever felt true thirst for whisky—longing for alcohol, however intense, is only an appetite. But thirst for water, the punishment of Tantalus, remains the king of terrors, with whom one does not jest.

Health Insurance

HEALTH insurance is the only plan which will bring competent medical service within the reach of all, is the opinion of Dr. Harvey Smith, Winnipeg, president of the British Medical Association, as he spoke at Winnipeg at the convention of that body.

Sickness is one of the greatest factors militating against the worker. Long continued, it saps away his earnings and brings his family to want.

"The economic organization of medicine has not kept pace with its scientific progress. A prolific source of criticism arises from the failure of our profession to provide competent service to the various sections of the community under a financial plan that will meet the needs of every class of citizen," Smith said.

Some form of corporate medicine seems necessary if the profession is to meet the demands constantly raised, especially by citizens of rural districts, Smith said.

"It has been computed that thirty per cent of patients are attended without charge by the medical profession. The taxpayer views with complacency a system which relieves him of a vast responsibility. There is need of readjustment on the principle that 'the laborer is worthy of his hire'."

"In my judgment there is only one possible solution—health insurance," he said.

The insurance system would be satisfactory not only to the public but also to the medical and nursing professions and the hospitals, he said.

"Private practice must remain in the hands of the physician if the public is to receive the highest and best medical care. Any form of health insurance must provide for the retention of the private physician," he said.

Avoiding Forest and Grass Fires

WITH the woods as dry as tinder and the grass almost withered to a crisp, it seems almost foolish to caution persons to be careful with matches, cigarettes, and fire in any shape.

The forestry department is compelled to urge campers, tourists and others to be careful. Here are three points to be observed impartially by everybody:

Don't disregard a brush fire when you see it. Call a forest ranger. If you can't find him tell the nearest operator and she will report the fire.

Don't throw away lighted cigars or cigarettes in the woods or dry fields. These start many brush and timber blazes. Never throw them away without carefully extinguishing them.

Don't leave a camp fire. Put it out and be sure it's out before you leave.

The forestry department has never called attention to pop bottles. These inoffensive-looking bottles, drained of their contents, are tossed out indiscriminately. When lying in the right position to receive a full complement of the sun's rays, these bottles act like burning glasses and set fire to things. Be careful where you toss these bottles.

In town life, see that your chimney is kept clean and your heating plant renovated. Sparks from a chimney in this dry season can do untold damage. Inoffensive appearing grass fires can spread so quickly as to set fire to houses, fences, barns, etc.

One of the most unusual fire accidents occurred near Long Prairie last week. As John Wostrel, aged 73, was driving his hay rake, his team ran away and the man was thrown to the ground in the loose hay. Sparks from his pipe ignited the hay and he was burned to death.

Fish Dying

THOUSANDS of whitefish in northern Minnesota lakes have been killed by the drought and consequent low water levels, and further aggravated by continued withdrawal of water. It is believed by many that the state will have to establish a closed netting season on the fish this fall.

At Sandy lake thousands of fish strew the beaches and game wardens are burying them. They are generally fine fish weighing 10 to 15 pounds. At Mille Lacs it is reported more than 10 tons of fish were gathered up by game wardens.

Heat and low water, it is claimed, have not been the only contributing factors to the death of the fish. Lack of wind is a cause, too, as reported in exchanges. Wind circulates the water in lakes and causes re-oxygenation of the deeper waters.

BREEZY POINT LODGE TO ENLARGE COURSE TO 18 HOLES

WORK TO START ON THE LINKS IN EARLY SEPTEMBER

EXPECTED TO HAVE ENLARGED COURSE IN READINESS BY JULY 1 OF NEXT YEAR

NEW CLUB HOUSE TO BE BUILT; DOUBLE TANK SYSTEM TO CARRY 70,000 GAL. WATER

Breezy Point Lodge golf course is to be enlarged from a nine-hole course to an 18-hole course, with work starting early in September this year and everything in readiness for play on the enlarged course by July 4 of next year.

The extension will run southward into the so-called McIntyre land holdings of Captain W. H. Fawcett. The captain when he laid out Breezy Point took the precaution to acquire many acres of land so that enlargements to the estate can easily be made.

A new golf club house is to be erected near the present No. 4 greens. Another improvement will be in the water supply for the grounds. A double tank is to be built having 20,000 gallons storage on an 80-foot height and 50,000 gallons in an upper tank. These tanks will supply water for use on the course, the lawns and shrubbery.

FRANKIE CAMPBELL

FIGHTS HARD BATTLE

AGAINST DEATH

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—King of Pacific coast heavyweights for several years, Frankie Campbell was fighting a hard battle against death today, suffering from injuries received in the most important bout of his career against Max Baer last night.

Campbell slumped to the ring unconscious, during the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round match. Baer's right and left handed punches to his head as he sagged against the ropes in a corner had forced him to drop his hands and his knees suddenly collapsed under him.

"He is suffering from cerebral contusions," Dr. Frank Sheehy, surgeon, said after an examination. "The outlook is poor. The critical stage will continue for 24 hours."

CLARA BOW SIGNS

A NEW CONTRACT WITH PARAMOUNT

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—Clara Bow, red-haired "flaming youth girl" of the screen, has signed a new contract with Paramount, setting at rest rumors that she was not on the best terms with studio executives.

Jesse L. Lasky, first vice president of Paramount, said the contract will become effective October 1. It will begin her sixth year with the company and her fifth as a star.

Seek Junior Championship

Aspiring to become junior speed champions for the flight from coast to coast, Larry Bockay, 18, and William Graves, 19, set out from the metropolitan airport, Los Angeles, on the first lap of their journey. They were flying a new Laird biplane, powered with a Wright whirlwind motor. When they reach New York they will go after the record in earnest, for on the east-west flight they plan to push their plane to the utmost, stopping only for fuel en route.

PITTSBURGH PIRATES TOUGH OPPONENTS FOR CHICAGO CUBS

Chicago, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—Jewell Ens' Pittsburgh Pirates, fighting for a first division berth, furnished the opposition for the Chicago Cubs today as the National League leaders resumed their drive for the pennant.

Although the Pirates have been unable to climb above fifth place and are 11 games behind Chicago, they have been tough opponents for the Cubs this season, winning 7 of the 15 games played.

NICK CULLOP OUT AFTER BABE RUTH'S HOME RUN RECORD

Minneapolis, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—Sluggish Nick Cullop of the Minneapolis Millers was out to break the world's record for home runs held by Babe Ruth today after hitting his forty-fifth and forty-sixth yesterday in a doubleheader with Indianapolis. At his present pace Cullop should exceed Ruth's mark of 60 set in 1927.

ONLY 3 GAMES ARE SCHEDULED FOR TODAY'S PLAY

WASHINGTON SENATORS TRIM LEAGUE-LEADING ATHLETICS' LEAD TO 6½ GAMES

"SAD SAM" JONES AND JOE CROHN COMBINED TO SCORE THE VICTORY

(By United Press)

These are the idle days in the major leagues. Only two games, both in the American, were played yesterday, and only three games are scheduled for today. Washington meets Philadelphia in the American and St. Louis engages Cincinnati and Pittsburgh opens with Chicago in the National.

The Washington Senators trimmed the league-leading Philadelphia Athletics' lead to six and one-half games yesterday when they defeated the A's 3 to 2. "Sad Sam" Jones combined with Joe Cronin to score the victory. Jones allowed the A's but six hits, while Cronin drove in all of his team's runs with a home run and a single. Lefty Grove opposed Jones on the mound.

Tommy Bridges, slender young right-hander, made his major league debut a winning one as the Detroit Tigers defeated the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 5. The youngster got into trouble in the ninth when the Browns scored four runs and was relieved by Hoyt. The Tigers gave Bridges excellent support afield executing three double plays. The recruit hurler walked 12 men.

American Association Tabs

(By United Press)
Kansas City, Aug. 26.—The Kansas City Blues' winning streak of six games was cut short yesterday when the Columbus Senators clouted out 10 hits and won the third game of the series, 4 to 2.

Minneapolis, Aug. 26.—Taking both ends of a double-header, 11 to 5 and 14 to 12, Minneapolis succeeded in winning their five-game series with Indianapolis, three games to two.

Milwaukee, Aug. 26.—Milwaukee batters got three triples, two doubles, six singles, three walks, but could score only four runs yesterday. Toledo took the game in the ninth inning with a home run, 5 to 4.

St. Paul, Aug. 26.—The second place St. Paul club took another victory over the leading Louisville Colonels yesterday, blanking the southerners under a 3 to 0 score. Louisville now has a standing in the American Association of .602; St. Paul, .581.

NOT DECIDED YET ON THE DEFENDER

NO SELECTION MADE FOR THE YACHT TO OPPOSE SHAMROCK V

By SIDNEY B. WHIPPLE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—The New York Yacht Club's race selection committee still hoped to get another line on the four American contenders, for the honor of defending the America's Cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, Shamrock V, as the four yachts prepared to hit the line again today.

Heavy or thick weather has caused a postponement of the three last contests outside Newport Harbor, and if this weather continues, the committee may be forced to pick a yacht which has not had a thorough tryout in light airs, such as may be expected off the Rhode Island coast in September.

The committee was willing for the yachts to stage a race yesterday, but the elements weren't. Instead of the light breeze, with clear sunshine that had been expected, the contenders were blanketed in a whirling mist that cut in from the sea and prevented even the markerboats from putting out their signals.

The big tow-boat Susan E. Moran, which is the committee's home at sea, bobbed up and down for nearly four hours while the New York Yacht Club's committee of admirals, commodores and assistant stewards discussed the probabilities of staging a race. Finally most of the officers became sick enough to be willing to call the affair off for another day, and the signals were hoisted recalling the ships, then shrouded in ghostly gloom.

FLYWEIGHT CHAMPION TO BE CROWNED AT NEW YORK OCT. 17

New York, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—A flyweight champion who will be accepted by all parties concerned will be crowned here Oct. 17 when Midget Wolgast, Philadelphia, and Frankie Genaro, New York, meet in a 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

The match was closed yesterday by Tom McArdle, Garden match-maker.

American Traits

A Britisher, traveling in this country, writes back to his home folks that Americans have two supreme virtues: Honesty and kindness. He says we hide nothing, not even our vices. He also confesses that we have the royal conception of hospitality. The glad-hand of the chamber of commerce must have held his hand.—Los Angeles Times.

LORD BURGHLEY ENGLAND'S GREAT HURDLER!

BURGHLEY LEADS THE BRITISH TRACK TEAM AGAINST THE U.S. TEAM AT CHICAGO THIS WEEK!

SPORT BUG.

8/26

PERFECT specimen of the gentleman-sportsman is Lord David Burghley, Olympic 400-metre hurdling champion, who is expected to help win the timber-topping relay for the British Empire in his field and track meet with the United States to be held at Chicago tomorrow evening. This team competition will bring together one of the greatest arrays of talent ever assembled except at Olympics. Each nation will be represented by upwards of fifty athletes. John Bull picked his best at the recent British Empire games in Hamilton, Ont., Canada. Uncle Sam chose his ablest late yesterday right after the National A. A. U. games were concluded at Pittsburgh.

The meet will be conducted under English "relay rules," i. e., the track events will all be team relays, each victory counting for one point. Three previous meets have resulted in two United States victories and one tie. England's chief hope is in the eight track, while the U. S. expects a sweep in the six field events.

Britain has "Doug" Lowe, the runner; Dr. "Pat" O'Callaghan, (need we note) of Ireland, hammer-thrower, and at least a full score of world celebrities on its Empire team, but none, perhaps, is as well known and admired as Burghley, natural lord of the hurdles, high and low.

The most "flower of youth" in any land never presented a finer specimen than does Lord Burghley, rightly called "the athletic world's Prince of Wales." Stalwart, handsome, democratic, this scion of ancient English nobility, can mix with toffs or toughs, always leaving that New York "what-a-man" impression. A gentleman to the manner (and manner) born, Burghley has been a most popular winner in English and international competitions for many years. He's a genuine genius at his specialty, the hurdles, and in his 400-metre version he is rated by many as the greatest ever.

BREEZY POINT LODGE TO ENLARGE COURSE TO 18 HOLES

WORK TO START ON THE LINKS IN EARLY SEPTEMBER

EXPECTED TO HAVE ENLARGED COURSE IN READINESS BY JULY 1 OF NEXT YEAR

NEW CLUB HOUSE TO BE BUILT; DOUBLE TANK SYSTEM TO CARRY 70,000 GAL. WATER

Breezy Point Lodge golf course is to be enlarged from a nine-hole course to an 18-hole course, with work starting early in September this year and everything in readiness for play on the enlarged course by July 4 of next year.

The extension will run southward into the so-called McIntyre land holdings of Captain W. H. Fawcett. The captain when he laid out Breezy Point took the precaution to acquire many acres of land so that enlargements to the estate can easily be made.

A new golf club house is to be erected near the present No. 4 greens. Another improvement will be in the water supply for the grounds. A double tank is to be built having 20,000 gallons storage on an 80-foot height and 50,000 gallons in an upper tank. These tanks will supply water for use on the course, the lawns and shrubbery.

FRANKIE CAMPBELL

FIGHTS HARD BATTLE

AGAINST DEATH

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—King of Pacific coast heavyweights for several years, Frankie Campbell was fighting a hard battle against death today, suffering from injuries received in the most important bout of his career against Max Baer last night.

Campbell slumped to the ring unconscious, during the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round match. Baer's right and left handed punches to his head as he sagged against the ropes in a corner had forced him to drop his hands and his knees suddenly collapsed from under him.

"He is suffering from cerebral contusions," Dr. Frank Sheehy, surgeon, said after an examination. "The outlook is poor. The critical stage will continue for 24 hours."

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—Clara Bow, red-haired "flaming youth girl" of the screen, has signed a new contract with Paramount, setting at rest rumors that she was not on the best terms with studio executives.

Jesse L. Lasky, first vice president of Paramount, said the contract will become effective October 1. It will begin her sixth year with the company and her fifth as a star.

ONLY 3 GAMES ARE SCHEDULED FOR TODAY'S PLAY

WASHINGTON SENATORS TRIM LEAGUE-LEADING ATHLETICS' LEAD TO 6½ GAMES

"SAD SAM" JONES AND JOE CROHN COMBINED TO SCORE THE VICTORY

(By United Press)

These are the idle days in the major leagues. Only two games, both in the American, were played yesterday, and only three games are scheduled for today. Washington meets Philadelphia in the American and St. Louis engages Cincinnati and Pittsburgh opens with Chicago in the National.

The Washington Senators trimmed the league-leading Philadelphia Athletics' lead to six and one-half games yesterday when they defeated the A's 3 to 2. "Sad Sam" Jones combined with Joe Cronin to score the victory. Jones allowed the A's but six hits, while Cronin drove in all of his team's runs with a home run and a single. Lefty Grove opposed Jones on the mound.

Tommy Bridges, slender young right-hander, made his major league debut a winning one as the Detroit Tigers defeated the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 5. The youngster got into trouble in the ninth when the Browns scored four runs and was relieved by Hoyt. The Tigers gave Bridges excellent support affixed executing three double plays. The recruit hurler walked 12 men.

American Association Tabs

(By United Press)

Kansas City, Aug. 26.—The Kansas City Blues' winning streak of six games was cut short yesterday when the Columbus Senators clouted out 10 hits and won the third game of the series, 4 to 2.

Minneapolis, Aug. 26.—Taking both ends of a double-header, 11 to 5 and 14 to 12, Minneapolis succeeded in winning their five-game series with Indianapolis, three games to two.

Milwaukee, Aug. 26.—Milwaukee batters got three triples, two doubles, six singles, three walks, but could score only four runs yesterday. Toledo took the game in the ninth inning with a home run, 5 to 4.

St. Paul, Aug. 26.—The second place St. Paul club took another victory over the leading Louisville Colonels yesterday, blanking the southerners under a 3 to 0 score. Louisville now has a standing in the American Association of .602; St. Paul, .581.

NOT DECIDED YET ON THE DEFENDER

NO SELECTION MADE FOR THE YACHT TO OPPOSE SHAMROCK V

By SIDNEY B. WHIPPLE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—The New York Yacht Club's race selection committee still hoped to get another line on the four American contenders, for the honor of defending the America's Cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, Shamrock V, as the four yachts prepared to hit the line again today.

Heavy or thick weather has caused a postponement of the three last contests outside Newport Harbor, and if this weather continues, the committee may be forced to pick a yacht which has not had a thorough tryout in light airs, such as may be expected off the Rhode Island coast in September.

The committee was willing for the yachts to stage a race yesterday, but the elements weren't. Instead of the light breeze, with clear sunshine that had been expected, the contenders were blanketed in a whirling mist that cut in from the sea and prevented even the marksmen from putting out their signals.

The big tow-boat Susan B. Moran, which is the committee's home at sea, bobbed up and down for nearly four hours while the New York Yacht Club's committee of admirals, commodores and assistant stewards discussed the probabilities of staging a race. Finally most of the officers became sick enough to be willing to call the affair off for another day, and the signals were hoisted recalling the ships, then shrouded in ghostly gloom.

The match was closed yesterday by Tom McArdle, Garden matchmaker.

Wash Suits Liked for Tots' Clothes

Cotton Outfits That Launder Well Are Found Best for Everyday Wear.

Anything that makes a child look conspicuous is in poor taste. This is the first and last axiom to remember in dressing children, warns a fashion writer in the New York Times, and the mother who carries it about on her shopping tours as a mental yardstick will never make the mistake of purchasing fussy silk dresses, two-color or organdies loaded with embroidery or any other "too, too cute" things which are, alas, still to be seen in shops that ought to know better.

There are available plenty, indeed a refreshing lot, of exactly the sort of clothes that are appropriate for little girls, and the further good news is that many of them are not too expensive. For years American mothers have complained that this country could not make play clothes as well as England, or party clothes as well as Paris. Perhaps their lamentations reached a responsive ear among the manufacturers. At any rate, domestic designers have applied themselves seriously to the dress problems of the youngest generation with excellent results. You may not see so many of the deep 6 or 8-inch hems that distinguish the little Paris frock, but you can find the same fine handwork, restrained use of color and simplicity of cut at prices well below those of the imports.

Fashions for children are undeniably influenced by grown-up fashions. The reason is that people concerned with the making of children's clothes are ever on the lookout for not too sophisticated adult fashions that can be copied down with slight changes in the small sizes. Obviously, this calls for the most expert treatment. Sometimes the results are happy: capes, boleros and bows, properly used, have certainly added charm and zest to youthful wardrobes. The revival of Kate Greenway styles brought in its train adorable frocks for the picturesquely pretty little girl. Sometimes the results are not happy. Flared skirts and too fitted lines were ventured and were as unsuccessful as they deserved to be.

Children as Style Leaders.

Children have their own style leaders, too. When it was learned a year ago that the small daughter of the Duke of York was going in for yellow, an enterprising New York store played up the fact and dressed uncounted hundreds of children in yellow. (Her wardrobe this year is mostly pink, by the way.) No doubt, whatever the junior Lindbergh wears will immediately become the thing for the well-dressed young man.

The fashion for dressing two or more children alike continues in high favor. Brother and sister outfits, made in the same fabrics and colors but with skirts for sister and shorts for brother, are carried by practically all the shops and worn by many youngsters. Some mothers who do not care for this uniformity avoid exactly matching costumes, but select ones in the same general color scheme that will go well together. Similar dresses for big and little sisters come in as many as four different size ranges, with a little more grown-up detail in the larger sizes.

To get down to the specific problems of summer clothes for children, sturdy affairs that can be laundered easily and often are the thing for everyday wear. Play suits or dresses of chambray, pique, shirting and broadcloth will stand up nobly through the activities of industrious babies who like to dig holes in the back yard. Bloomer dresses and the familiar old straps, while the very latest sun suit for the very youngest tanner is nothing whatever but a pair of balbriggan shorts. Very lido. Shorts, by the way, are just as prominent in children's wardrobes as in grownups, and the children do not bother much with accompanying skirts. A chunky shirt and shorts make an ideal outfit for little girls on the cooler days.

For dress-up occasions, frocks of dimity batiste or dotted swiss are in order. Organdie is used, too, and some of the most delectable dresses imaginable are made of fine handkerchief linen, their only trimming being discreet applique or insertions of linen in a contrasting color.

Hats matching dresses are a leading fashion for children this year. There are linen hats matching the pastel linens, pique, organdie, both printed and plain, and many other types of fabric hats that add to the charm of the small wearer.

For Girls in Early 'Teens.

The girl in her early 'teens is apt to have a difficult time finding clothes that are becoming as well as appropriate to her age. She belongs neither to the "little girl" nor the "junior miss" categories, and it is not strange that she should so often look and feel uncomfortably awkward.

While it is necessary that a mother should recognize this difficulty, in her efforts to overcome it she should never allow her daughter to realize that she is a problem or to get an idea that "nothing will look well on her anyhow." For this will result in her losing all interest in her appearance for a long time to come or will make her so self-conscious about it as to prolong her awkward days unnecessarily.

One of the surest ways of avoiding such a situation is to make sure that the child's clothes are so comfortable that her attention is not called to them on that account. Avoid fussy details or tight fits that restrict her free movement and interfere with her playing at anything whatsoever that she should undertake. And remember that with all their love of "showing off," children hate to be different in any conspicuous way from their playmates. It is better that a girl of this age should be dressed ultra-conservatively than so fashionably as to arouse her comment or anyone else's.

The proportions of her figure must be taken into account. If she is tall and thin, lines that cut the dress crosswise add breadth to the effect, while conversely, if she is short and stout, long, up-and-down lines will give her height and slimmness. A waistline should be denoted but not by an exaggerated fitted line, and a skirt length that just covers the knee is a wise compromise.

Coats and Hats Match.

If the ensemble idea is a good one for mothers and grown-up sisters, then, says the very small sister, it is good for me, too. And suiting the action to the word she buys her coats and hats in matching colors and in matching materials as well when possible.

Pastel colors are her favorite medium for ensemble coats and hats with pique and linen taking the lead. Not content with matching coats and hats, this up-to-date young lady also has ensembles of dress and hat. Dotted swiss is as fashionable for hats as it is for dresses, and when the hat takes to a crisp scalloped brim and a sectional crown encircled by ribbon to match the dots or ground color, what more fetching ensemble could be hoped for? Handkerchief linen, dimity, printed lawn—in fact any of the summer materials for little girls' frocks—have also found their way into little girls' hats. Berets of flannel, jersey, angora or crocheted silk and wool are popular.

Straws, too, are a summer favorite with the younger sister, especially when she is eight and over. These also are colored to harmonize with dresses or coats and ape their elders with low crowns and brims that curve to reveal the face or are folded and turned back in truly sophisticated style. The rough large weaves of dull surface are partial to miniature wreaths or bouquets of mixed field flowers, but the bakus and ballbuntings stick strictly to business as far as trimmings go, contenting themselves with tailored ribbon bands and bows.

The DAIRY

VALUE OF GRAIN FEED IS SHOWN

Figures Prove That Good Rations Make Best Return.

G. W. Talley, Jr., of the New York State Agricultural college, presents records from dairy herd improvement associations which show that liberal feeding of grain to good cows gives the dairyman good returns in summer and fall as well as during the winter.

The figures prove that the average yield of milk for dairy cows in New York is 5,500 pounds of milk. In one group of cows with less than the average production, or only 5,261 pounds of milk, each cow was fed an average $20 worth of grain and $35 worth of hay, silage, and pasture, or $55 in all for feed. The average value of the cows' milk in this group was $146, or $91 more than all costs of feed.

In a group of cows with the average production of 5,500 pounds of milk, the value of the milk was $166. The total feed cost was $71, made up of $30 for grain and $41 for roughage, and the net return was $95.

A group which produced, on an average, 7,771 pounds of milk and fed $50 worth of grain and $44 worth of roughage, produced a gross return of $213 against a feed cost of $94, or a net return of $119. Similarly, two other groups, producing about twice the state average in pounds of milk, or 10,254 pounds and 11,537 pounds respectively, were fed $85 and $99 worth of grain, and $42 and $46 worth of roughage, with total feed costs of $127 and $145 as compared with milk values $250 and $339 each, and net returns of $153 and $194.

In other words, Mr. Talley points out, the more grain, the more milk, and the greater the money return. From this he deduces that it pays, and pays well, to keep efficient cows and to feed them liberally on grain. A large allowance of grain keeps the cows in good condition and makes them enter the winter season in good condition to supply the milk needed to hold the milk market when it will bring its best returns.

Chop Hay With Ensilage Cutter to Save Waste

Many dairy and live stock farmers have found by practical experience that chopping hay with an ensilage cutter not only saves a considerable amount of the hay from being wasted, but also helps towards getting more feed value out of that consumed, due to being more easily mixed with other feeds. Practical tests with dairy herds show that two tons of chopped hay gave almost as much returns as three tons fed long. Often the hay is chopped just as it comes from the field and the chopped feed is blown directly into the mow. About the same amount of curing is necessary whether mowed in the chopped or whole form. This has the additional advantage that the day's use of the ensilage cutter is doubled or trebled and thus its cost per hour brought down for the silo filling.

Cutting Down Cow Feed Lowers Yield of Milk

Trying to make a dairy herd profitable by cutting down on the amount of feed or by not supplying the amount of protein that is required for economical milk production is up-hill work. In fact, it cannot be done. Cutting down the protein supply below actual requirements is a good deal like trying to make a roadbed by putting half as much cement in the concrete mixture as is actually required for good results. In one case it results in low milk production and little or no profit above feed cost, and in the other, in a worthless road which represents a complete loss not only of the material used, but also of the labor employed in producing and laying the defective concrete.

Outline of Economics of Permanent Pastures

Let us now sum up the economics of permanent pastures: There is a great saving of labor, since no cultivation is necessary and the live stock harvest the crop. A highly digestible protein is produced on the farm at a very low cost from cheap nitrogen carriers easily and cheaply carried, rather than having to buy high-priced concentrates. Land not well suited for cultivation can be used. The acreage cultivated is reduced, cereal production is curtailed, and markets are strengthened by lack of over-production. More live stock can be supported to the acre, more milk and meat can be produced a head. Every acre is made to do its best.

Silage for Dairy Cow

Dairy cows consume pasture grass because it is a succulent and appetizing feed. Abundant pasture grass is an ideal and economical feed for milk production. However, pasture grass cannot be fed during the winter, and it is necessary for the dairyman to substitute some succulent, palatable feed in order to maintain the greatest possible production of milk and fat. Corn silage, because it is very available, is the most commonly used winter succulent feed.

FOR PREFERENCE

The two tramps were making very slow progress along the winding country lane.

"Ah," sighed Dusty Rhodes, gazing at a distant landscape, "ain't that really lovely! It makes me feel like the poet." He waved his arms in the air. "I long for the wings of a dove!" he recited.

His companion, who was wondering where the next meal was coming from, grunted miserably:

"I'd much rather have the breast of a chicken and a couple of drumsticks!" he remarked.

Professional Feeling

A lawyer had just completed a wretched defense of a young Virginian accused of a crime. His summation was worse, but he painted a vivid picture of the poor boy's mother and of Virginia in the smoky, fall haze. Suddenly an old gentleman began sobbing. The lawyer went over to him.

"Are you a Virginian, sir?" he asked. "No, young man," he sobbed. "I'm a lawyer."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Remember the medicine shows that used to come to town? With minstrel music and flaring gaslight, the eloquent "Doctor" sold a good many bottles of his marvelous elixir. No chance to discover that it was only molasses and water! He was gone next day to another town, playing "one-night stands."

Modern advertising and selling methods are very, very different. Merchants and manufacturers are in business day after day, year after year, at the same address. They need your continued custom. They must tell the story of their merchandise truthfully to keep your confidence. They must offer honest values to insure your satisfaction. And they do—in the advertising pages.

Read the advertisements. There's no surer, easier way to economical buying. They show you what you want at the lowest price and tell you where it may be had. You can go direct to get it or order it delivered. You save time, save money. Read the advertisements—and read them regularly.

Attractive Summer Frock of Organdie for the Ten-Year-Old.

Moddy blouse and skirt are as reliable as ever. The slightly older girl may wear a sleeveless shantung or cotton dress that looks very much like a grown-up tennis dress. The boy's favorite vacation uniform consists of khaki shirt and shorts.

The abbreviated sun suit in linen or cotton mesh is a healthy out-of-door costume for the baby of the family. Some have little shirt tops cut with a low back, or no back but

Cotton Outfits That Launder Well Are Found Best for Everyday Wear.

Anything that makes a child look conspicuous is in poor taste. This is the first and last axiom to remember in dressing children, warns a fashion writer in the New York Times, and the mother who carries it about on her shopping tours as a mental yardstick will never make the mistake of purchasing fussy silk dresses, two-color organdies loaded with embroidery or any other "too, too cute" things which are, alas, still to be seen in shops that ought to know better.

There are available plenty, indeed a refreshing lot, of exactly the sort of clothes that are appropriate for little girls, and the further good news is that many of them are not too expensive. For years American mothers have complained that this country could not make play clothes as well as England, or party clothes as well as Paris. Perhaps their lament reached a responsive ear among the manufacturers. At any rate, domestic designers have applied themselves seriously to the dress problems of the youngest generation with excellent results. You may not see so many of the deep 6 or 8-inch hems that distinguish the little Paris frock, but you can find the same fine handwork, restrained use of color and simplicity of cut at prices well below those of the imports.

Fashions for children are undeniably influenced by grown-up fashions. The reason is that people concerned with the making of children's clothes are ever on the lookout for not too sophisticated adult fashions that can be copied down with slight changes in the small sizes. Obviously, this calls for the most expert treatment. Sometimes the results are happy: capes, boleros and bows, properly used, have certainly added charm and zest to youthful wardrobes. The revival of Kate Greenway styles brought in its train adorable frocks for the picturesquely pretty little girl. Sometimes the results are not happy. Flared skirts and too fitted lines were ventured and were as unsuccessful as they deserved to be.

Children as Style Leaders.

Children have their own style leaders, too. When it was learned a year ago that the small daughter of the Duke of York was going in for yellow, an enterprising New York store played up the fact and dressed uncounted hundreds of children in yellow. (Her wardrobe this year is mostly pink, by the way.) No doubt, whatever the Junior Lindbergh wears will immediately become the thing for the well-dressed young man.

The fashion for dressing two or more children alike continues in high favor. Brother and sister outfits, made in the same fabrics and colors but with skirts for sister and shorts for brother, are carried by practically all the shops and worn by many youngsters. Some mothers who do not care for this uniformity avoid exactly matching costumes, but select ones in the same general color scheme that will go well together. Similar dresses for big and little sisters come in as many as four different size ranges, with a little more grown-up detail in the larger sizes.

To get down to the specific problems of summer clothes for children, sturdy affairs that can be laundered easily and often are the thing for everyday wear. Play suits or dresses of chambray, pique, shirting and broadcloth will stand up nobly through the activities of industrious bimbies who like to dig holes in the back yard. Bloomer dresses and the familiar old straps, while the very latest sun suit for the very youngest tanner is nothing whatever but a pair of halbrigan shorts. Very Lido. Shorts, by the way, are just as prominent in children's wardrobes as in grownups, and the children do not bother much with accompanying skirts. A chunky shirt and shorts make an ideal outfit for little girls on the cooler days.

For dress-up occasions, frocks of dimity batiste or dotted swiss are in order. Organdie is used, too, and some of the most delectable dresses imaginable are made of fine handkerchief linen, their only trimming being discreet applique or insertions of linen in a contrasting color.

Hats matching dresses are a leading fashion for children this year. There are linen hats matching the pastel linens, pique, organdie, both printed and plain, and many other types of fabric hats that add to the charm of the small wearer.

For Girls in Early 'Teens.

The girl in her early 'teens is apt to have a difficult time finding clothes that are becoming as well as appropriate to her age. She belongs neither to the "little girl" nor the "junior miss" categories, and it is not strange that she should so often look and feel uncomfortably awkward.

While it is necessary that a mother should recognize this difficulty, in her efforts to overcome it she should never allow her daughter to realize that she is a problem or to get an idea that "nothing will look well on her anyhow." For this will result in her losing all interest in her appearance for a long time to come or will make her so self-conscious about it as to prolong her awkward days unnecessarily.

One of the surest ways of avoiding such a situation is to make sure that the child's clothes are so comfortable that her attention is not called to them on that account. Avoid fussy details or tight fits that restrict her free movement and interfere with her playing at anything whatsoever that she should undertake. And remember that with all their love of "showing off," children hate to be different in any conspicuous way from their playmates. It is better that a girl of this age should be dressed ultra-conservatively than so fashionably as to arouse her comment or anyone else's.

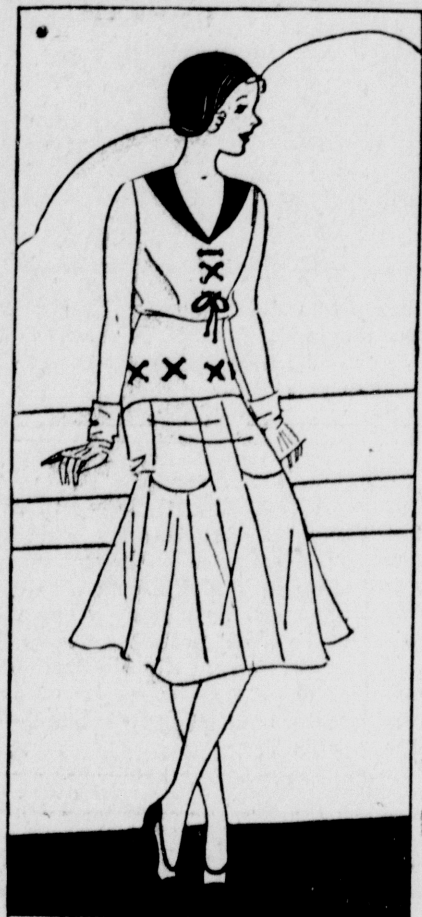

The proportions of her figure must be taken into account. If she is tall and thin, lines that cut the dress crosswise add breadth to the effect, while conversely, if she is short and stout, long, up-and-down lines will give her height and slimmness. A waistline should be denoted but not by an exaggerated fitted line, and a skirt length that just covers the knee is a wise compromise.

Coats and Hats Match.

If the ensemble idea is a good one for mothers and grown-up sisters, then, says the very small sister, it is good for me, too. And suiting the action to the word she buys her coats and hats in matching colors and in matching materials as well when possible.

Pastel colors are her favorite medium for ensemble coats and hats with pique and linen taking the lead. Not content with matching coats and hats, this up-to-date young lady also has ensembles of dress and hat. Dotted swiss is as fashionable for hats as it is for dresses, and when the hat takes to a crisp scalloped brim and a sectional crown encircled by ribbon to match the dots or ground color, what more fetching ensemble could be hoped for? Handkerchief linen, dimity, printed lawn—in fact any of the summer materials for little girls' frocks—have also found their way into little girls' hats. Berets of flannel, jersey, angora or crocheted silk and wool are popular.

Straws, too, are a summer favorite with the younger sister, especially when she is eight and over. These also are colored to harmonize with dresses or coats and ape their elders with low crowns and brims that curve to reveal the face or are folded and turned back in truly sophisticated style. The rough large weaves of dull surface are partial to miniature wreaths or bouquets of mixed field flowers, but the bakus and ballbuntis stick strictly to business as far as trimmings go, contenting themselves with tailored ribbon bands and bows.

Sailor Suit Is Popular for Girls Who Are Still in the Teens.

The DAIRY

VALUE OF GRAIN FEED IS SHOWN

Figures Prove That Good Rations Make Best Return.

G. W. Talby, Jr., of the New York State Agricultural college, presents records from dairy herd improvement associations which show that liberal feeding of grain to good cows gives the dairyman good returns in summer and fall as well as during the winter. The figures prove that the average yield of milk for dairy cows in New York is 5,500 pounds of milk. In one group of cows with less than the average production, or only 5,261 pounds of milk, each cow was fed an average $20 worth of grain and $35 worth of hay, silage, and pasture, or $55 in all for feed. The average value of the cows' milk in this group was $146, or $91 more than all costs of feed.

In a group of cows with the average production of 5,500 pounds of milk, the value of the milk was $166. The total feed cost was $71, made up of $30 for grain and $41 for roughage, and the net return was $95.

A group which produced, on an average, 7,771 pounds of milk and fed $50 worth of grain and $44 worth of roughage, produced a gross return of $213 against a feed cost of $94, or a net return of $119. Similarly, two other groups, producing about twice the state average in pounds of milk, or 10,254 pounds and 11,937 pounds respectively, were fed $85 and $99 worth of grain, and $42 and $46 worth of roughage, with total feed costs of $127 and $145 as compared with milk values $280 and $339 each, and net returns of $153 and $194.

In other words, Mr. Talby points out, the more grain, the more milk, and the greater the money return. From this he deduces that it pays, and pays well, to keep efficient cows and to feed them liberally on grain. A large allowance of grain keeps the cows in good condition and makes them enter the winter season in good condition to supply the milk needed to hold the milk market when it will bring its best returns.

Chop Hay With Ensilage Cutter to Save Waste

Many dairy and live stock farmers have found by practical experience that chopping hay with an ensilage cutter not only saves a considerable amount of the hay from being wasted, but also helps towards getting more feed value out of that consumed, due to being more easily mixed with other feeds. Practical tests with dairy herds show that two tons of chopped hay gave almost as much returns as three tons fed long. Often the hay is chopped just as it comes from the field and the chopped feed is blown directly into the mow. About the same amount of curing is necessary whether mowed in the chopped or whole form. This has the additional advantage that the day's use of the ensilage cutter is doubled or trebled and thus its cost per hour brought down for the silo filling.

Cutting Down Cow Feed Lowers Yield of Milk

Trying to make a dairy herd profitable by cutting down on the amount of feed or by not supplying the amount of protein that is required for economical milk production is up-hill work. In fact, it cannot be done. Cutting down the protein supply below actual requirements is a good deal like trying to make a roadbed by putting half as much cement in the concrete mixture as is actually required for good results. In one case it results in low milk production and little or no profit above feed cost, and in the other, in a worthless road which represents a complete loss not only of the material used, but also of the labor employed in producing and laying the defective concrete.

Outline of Economics of Permanent Pastures

Let us now sum up the economics of permanent pastures: There is a great saving of labor, since no cultivation is necessary and the live stock harvest the crop. A highly digestible protein is produced on the farm at a very low cost from cheap nitrogen carriers easily and cheaply carried, rather than having to buy high-priced concentrates. Land not well suited for cultivation can be used. The acreage cultivated is reduced, cereal production is curtailed, and markets are strengthened by lack of over-production. More live stock can be supported on the acre, more milk and meat can be produced a head. Every acre is made to do its best.

Silage for Dairy Cow

Dairy cows consume pasture grass because it is a succulent and appetizing feed. Abundant pasture grass is an ideal and economical feed for milk production. However, pasture grass cannot be fed during the winter, and it is necessary for the dairyman to substitute some succulent, palatable feed in order to maintain the greatest possible production of milk and fat. Corn silage, because it is very available, is the most commonly used winter succulent feed.

FOR PREFERENCE

The two tramps were making very slow progress along the winding country lane.

"Ah," sighed Dusty Rhodes, gazing at a distant landscape, "ain't that really lovely! It makes me feel like the poet." He waved his arms in the air. "I long for the wings of a dove!" he recited.

His companion, who was wondering where the next meal was coming from, grunted miserably:

"I'd much rather have the breast of a chicken and a couple of drumsticks!" he remarked.

Professional Feeling

A lawyer had just completed a wretched defense of a young Virginian accused of a crime. His summation was worse, but he painted a vivid picture of the poor boy's mother and of Virginia in the smoky, fall haze. Suddenly an old gentleman began sobbing. The lawyer went over to him.

"Are you a Virginian, sir?" he asked.

"No, young man," he sobbed. "I'm a lawyer."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Might Be Contagious

Angry Guest—Are you the manager of this infernal place?

Hotel Manager—Yes sir.

"I have a very serious complaint."

"Heavens, don't come near me—it might be catching!"

Seeing Is Believing

Walter found his mamma talking to a very stout woman.

"Walter," said his mother, "this is your great-aunt."

"Yes," said Walter, gazing at her ample proportions, "she looks it."

In Fear of Losing Him

To Dispatch, Brainerd, Minn.

In the matter of President Quansstrom of the city council declaring me out of order at the regular meeting of the council held August 18, 1930, this was on the matter of a photograph display cabinet of a photographer who is a newcomer to our city. He saw other cabinets, etc., projecting over the sidewalk and had his made accordingly.

After being informed that his cabinet was in violation of the ordinance he asked me (as a member of the police committee) why his cabinet was in violation of the ordinance when there were other violations that were being ignored, and I told him that I would take the matter up with the council, which I did, and in doing so I took the stand that the ordinance should be enforced in all cases or overlooked as it has been in the past, rather than make it class legislation.

I wish to take this opportunity to ask the readers of this article if they think me out of order when trying to prevent class legislation and partisanship in city legislation.

CHIEF WILL KEEP JOB

Chicago, Aug. 26.—(UP)—Police Chief William O. Freeman of Evanston, Chicago's most elite suburb, can keep his job, even if he did borrow $300 from Jack Zuta, notorious gang chieftain who was recently assassinated, Mayor Charles H. Bartlett announced today.

The mayor's exoneration of Freeman was made after a closed session with the city council. A copy of a note to Zuta, signed "your old pal, Bill Freeman," was found in one of the slain gangster's safety deposit boxes which contained business records involving prominent Chicagoans.

The note requested a loan of $400. Mayor Bartlett said Freeman borrowed only $300, however, and the money was repaid in full.

"I have the utmost confidence in Freeman's integrity and honesty," Mayor Bartlett said. "He had a legitimate reason to borrow the money and the loan involved no dishonesty."

HESITATES TO TALK ABOUT BIRTH CONTROL

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 26.—(UP)—Lord Dawson of Penn., physician to King George V of Great Britain and credited with saving his sovereign's life a year ago, believes the younger generation already has decided the matter of birth control.

The noted doctor who is attending the meeting of the British Medical Association convention here this week, was hesitant to discuss the conclusions of the Lambeth conference of the Church of England which gave its partial endorsement to birth control.

Lord Dawson believes the church conference made a compromise decision, although he wanted to see the text of the conclusions before making a definite criticism.

"Surely, as a matter of fact, the younger generation in the Protestant churches has already decided the matter for itself," Lord Dawson said.

"If the decision of the conference is a 'halting' one, the effect may be that the church will lose influence that should be theirs."

The physician to the king arrived last night by airplane from Kenora in Ontario's Lake of the Woods country.

Alderman Wesley's Statement

To Dispatch, Brainerd, Minn.

In the matter of President Quastrom of the city council declaring me out of order at the regular meeting of the council held August 18, 1930, this was on the matter of a photograph display cabinet of a photographer who is a newcomer to our city. He saw other cabinets, etc., projecting over the sidewalk and had his made accordingly. After being informed that his cabinet was in violation of the ordinance he asked me (as a member of the police committee) why his cabinet was in violation of the ordinance when there were other violations that were being ignored, and I told him that I would take the matter up with the council, which I did, and in doing so I took the stand that the ordinance should be enforced in all cases or overlooked as it has been in the past, rather than make it class legislation.

I wish to take this opportunity to ask the readers of this article if they think me out of order when trying to prevent class legislation and partisanship in city legislation.

ANDREW WESLEY.

EVANSTON'S POLICE CHIEF WILL KEEP JOB

Chicago, Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—Police Chief William O. Freeman of Evanston, Chicago's most elite suburb, can keep his job, even if he did borrow $300 from Jack Zuta, notorious gang chieftain who was recently assassinated, Mayor Charles H. Bartlett announced today.

The mayor's exoneration of Freeman was made after a closed session with the city council. A copy of a note to Zuta, signed "your old pal, Bill Freeman," was found in one of the slain gangster's safety deposit boxes which contained business records involving prominent Chicagoans.

The note requested a loan of $400. Mayor Bartlett said Freeman borrowed only $300, however, and the money was repaid in full.

"I have the utmost confidence in Freeman's integrity and honesty," Mayor Bartlett said. "He had a legitimate reason to borrow the money and the loan involved no dishonesty."

Fire North of Emily Near Control Unless Winds Spread it to New Areas

Forest rangers looked apprehensively towards the sky today and prayed that rain might come to end their long siege of fighting forest fires in this district which continued unchecked although no new fires were reported.

The large fire to the north of Emily that created a situation described as perilous to farmers was believed today by fire rangers as being nearly under control unless winds start the fire on a new path of destruction through the wooded areas.

Possible showers Wednesday were predicted by the state meteorological bureau.

The SEA BRIDE

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

THE ROMANCE OF AN EVENTFUL WHALING CRUISE

FAITH KILCUP marries Captain Noll Wing, skipper of the whaler, "Sally Sims," a man much older than herself. After a wedding supper aboard the boat, Faith and Noll sail away. Among the crew are Dan'l Tobey, second mate, who has loved Faith since childhood, and Roy, Faith's brother. There is little privacy, but Faith is content with Noll's love. Reminiscing, Faith recalls her childhood admiration for Noll's strength which led to love.

CHAPTER IV

WHEN Noll came down into the cabin Faith was waiting for him. She had put on a dressing-gown, a warm and woolly thing that she and Bess had made of a heavy blanket, to protect her against the chill winds of the sea. Her braids were upon her shoulders, her hair parted evenly above her broad brow. Her eyes were steady and sweet and calm. Noll, studying her while his heart leaped, where the dressing-gown parted at her throat, a touch of white, a spray of brodered blossoms which Faith herself had made, with every stitch a world of hope and dreams.

Faith lifted her eyes and came closer to him. He took her roughly in his arms, and she lifted one arm and threw it around his thick neck and drew his face down.

"Ah, Noll," she whispered proudly.

Faith Wing fitted easily into the life aboard the "Sally Sims," as the whaler worked eastward before starting on the long southerly slant that would bring her at last to her true hunting-grounds. The mates saw Faith daily as a pleasant figure in the life of the cabin; the boat-steerers and the seamen and greenies caught glimpses of her, now and then, when she sat on deck with sewing, or a book, or with idle hands and thoughtful eyes. Faith, on her part, studied the men about her, and watched over Noll, and gave herself to the task of being a good wife and helpmate to him.

The first weeks of the cruise were arduous ones, as they are apt to be on a whaler, for of the crew more than half were green, the others, the slums—weak men, in many cases, rotted by wrong living; slack-muscled, jangle-nerved; weak men who must be made strong, for there is no place for weakness in a whaler's crew.

It was the task of the mates to make these weaklings into men. The greenies must learn the rigging; they must learn their duties in response to each command; they must be drilled to their parts in the boats and prepared for the hunts that were to come. Your novice at sea has never an easy time of it; he learns it a hard school, and this is apt to be especially true upon a whaler. While the methods of the officers differed according to the habit of the officer, they were never gentle.

Cap'n Wing watched over all this, took a hand here and there. And Faith, quietly in the background, saw a new Noll, saw in each of the officers a man she had never seen ashore.

Noll was the master, the commander. When his voice bellowed along the decks even the greenest man leaped and desperately strove in his efforts to obey. Noll was the dominant man, and Faith was pleasantly afraid of him and his roaring tones. She loved being afraid of him.

There were four officers aboard the "Sally Sims." These four, with Roy—in his capacity of ship's boy—lived with Noll and Faith in the main cabin. They were Faith's family. Big Henry Ham, the mate, was a man of slow wit but quick fist; a man with a gift of stolidity that passed for mastery. The men of his watch, and especially the men of his boat, feared him acutely. He taught them this fear in the first week of the cruise by the simple teachings of blows. Thereafter he relaxed this chastisement, but held a clenched fist always over their cowering heads. He had what passed for a philosophy of life to justify this.

Dan'l Tobey, the second mate, was a man of another sort. Faith was startled and somewhat amused to find what a difference there was between Dan'l afloat and Dan'l ashore. Ashore, he was a round-faced, freckled, sandy-haired boy with no guile in him; an impetuous, somewhat helpless and inarticulate boy. Afloat, he was a man; reticent, speaking little, speaking to the point when he spoke at all. Shrewd, reading the character of his men, playing upon them as a musician plays upon his instruments.

Of the five men in his boat, not one but might have whipped him in a stand-up fight. Nevertheless, he ruled them. This one he dominated by cutting and sarcastic words that left the man abashed and helpless; that one he flattered; another he joked into quick obedience.

Dan'l had, Faith decided, more mental ability than any man aboard—short of her Noll. He ruled by his wits, and this more surprised her because she had always thought Dan'l more than a little stupid. She watched the unfolding of the new Dan'l with keener and keener interest as the weeks dragged by.

James Tichel, the third mate, was a thin little old man, given to occasional bursts of tigerish rage in which he was the match for any man aboard. In his second week he took the biggest man in his boat and beat him into a helpless, clucking wreck of bruises. Thereafter there was no need for him to strike a second time.

Willis Cox was fourth mate. He was a youngster; this his first cruise in the cabin. He had been promoted from the fore-cabin by Noll Wing on Noll's last voyage. By the same token, he worshiped Noll as a demigod with the enthusiasm of youth.

All these men had been changed, in subtle ways, by their coming to sea. Faith, during the first weeks, was profoundly puzzled and interested by this transformation. There was a new strength in all of them which she marveled and admired. At the same time there were manifestations by which she was disquieted.

Noll Wing—her Noll—had changed with the rest. He had changed not only in his every-day bearing, but in his relations with her. She was troubled, from the very beginning, by these changes, and she was troubled by her own reactions to them.

The pitiless intimacies of their life together in the cabin of the "Sally Sims" were hard for Faith. They shared two small rooms and Noll must be up and down at all hours of day and night, when the weather was bad or the business of whaling engrossed him. Faith, without being vain, had that reverence and respect for herself which goes by the name of modesty. Her body was as sacred to her as her soul. The necessity that they were under of dressing and undressing in a tiny room not eight feet long was a perpetual torment to her.

She had been, when she married, prepared for disillusionment. Faith was not a child; she was a woman. She had the wisdom to know that no man is a heroic figure in a nightshirt. But she was not prepared to discover that Noll, who walked among men as a master, could fret at his wife like a nervous woman.

This fretfulness manifested itself more than once in the early stages of the voyage. For Noll was growing old, and growing old a little before his time because he spent his life too freely. He was, at times, as querulous as a complaining old man. Because he was apt to be profane in these moods, Faith tried to tell herself that they were the stormy outbreaks of a strong man. But she knew better. When Noll, after they lost their second whale, growled to her:

"Damn Tichel! The man's losing his pith. You'd think a man like him could strike a whale and not let it get away."

Faith knew this was no just accusation against Tichel, but an out-and-out whine of irritability. She knew this, but would not admit it, even in her thoughts.

Another matter troubled her. Noll Wing was a drinker. She had always known that. It was a part of his strength, she thought, to be able to drink strong liquor as a man should. But aboard ship she found that he drank constantly, that there was always the sickly-sweet smell of alcohol about him. And at times he drank to stupefaction and sleep, loglike, while Faith lay wide-eyed and ashamed for him in the bunk below his. She was sorry, but because she trusted in Noll's strength and wisdom, she made no attempt to interfere.

More than once, when Noll fretted at her while others were about, she saw Dan'l Tobey's eyes upon her, and at such times she took care to look serene and proud. Dan'l must not so much as guess it if Noll should ever make her unhappy.

But Noll make her unhappy? The very thought was absurd. He was her Noll; she was his. When they were wedded she had given herself to him, and taken him as a part of herself, utterly and without reservation. He might fail her high expectations in little things; she might fail him. But for all that they were one, one body and soul so long as they both should live.

She was as loyal to him, even in her thoughts, as to herself. For this was Faith; she was Noll's forever.

She thought that what she felt was hidden; but Dan'l Tobey had eyes to see. And now and then, when in crafty ways he led big Noll to act unworthily before her, he watched for the shadow that crossed her face, and smiled in his own soul.

There was, in Dan'l Tobey's boat, a little man named Mauger. It was he whom Dan'l ruled by a superior tongue, deriding the man and scorning him with jests that made Mauger crimson with shame for himself. Mauger was a greenie; he was a product of the worst conditions of the city. He was little and shrunken and thin, and his shoulders curled forward as though to hug and shelter his weak chest. Nevertheless, there was a ratlike spirit in the man, and a ratlike gleam in his black, little eyes. He was one of those men who inspire dislike, even when they strive to win the liking of their fellows. The very fo'c'sle baited him.

It was through Mauger that the first open clash between Cap'n Wing and Faith, his wife, was brought to pass.

JUNE PASTURES IN WINTER BIG NEED

Dairyman Should Buy Feed in Advance at Low Price.

"Knee deep in June," spells just about the last word in dairy feeding.

But, while June pastures in winter time are out of the question, it is possible to imitate June the year around, according to successful dairymen.

Taking their cue from nature they aim to have "contented cows" by extending the favorable conditions found in June pastures throughout the year as far as this is possible.

Roy T. Harris, dairy record official in Wisconsin for the American Ayre-shire Breeders' association, the Holstein Friesian Association of America, the American Guernsey Cattle club, the Brown Swiss Breeders' association and the American Jersey Cattle club, has listed as the assets of a good June pasture, a well balanced ration, plenty of succulence, an abundance of fresh air and sunshine, pure water, and a normal amount of exercise.

Asked for a 1929 model of a dairy ration, Harris admitted that there are about as many models in dairy feeds as in automobiles. He, in common with the dairymen in general, is quite concerned about the bran and feed market. His only solution is that the farmer try to foresee how much feed he will have to buy, and then imitate the large feed companies by buying in advance when the price is low.

He appreciates that winter conditions bring their own problems and difficulties and that in place of the ration prepared already for us, by nature, we have to supply feed from various sources which will answer in its stead. He has found one good ration consisting of 25 to 45 pounds of silage, 10 to 15 pounds of clover hay and a grain mixture like the following satisfactory for this year: 30 parts of bran, 40 parts of ground oats of barley, 30 parts cornmeal or hominy feed, and 10 parts oil meal, using one pound of grain mixture for each three to four pounds of milk produced. If roots are used in place of silage 30 to 50 pounds will be necessary.

There was, in Dan'l Tobey's boat, a little man named Mauger. It was he whom Dan'l ruled by a superior tongue, deriding the man and scorning him with jests that made Mauger crimson with shame for himself. Mauger was a greenie; he was a product of the worst conditions of the city. He was little and shrunken and thin, and his shoulders curled forward as though to hug and shelter his weak chest. Nevertheless, there was a ratlike spirit in the man, and a ratlike gleam in his black, little eyes. He was one of those men who inspire dislike, even when they strive to win the liking of their fellows. The very fo'c'sle baited him.

It was through Mauger that the first open clash between Cap'n Wing and Faith, his wife, was brought to pass.

Pure-Bred Cattle Used to Boost Animal Prices

Cattle buyers who know that "blood will tell" are paying more for the cow that has records in her pedigree to prove her blood, says Prof. H. A. Hopper of Cornell university, who cites the records of the Holstein Friesian association sales from 1925 to 1928 in warning pure-bred breeders to keep testing their herds.

In these sales, cows with long-time records brought an average of $180 each, untested cows from tested dams sold for $223 each, while untested cows from untested dams brought but $183. Heifers from tested dams sold for $272 and heifers from untested dams sold for $108.

That there is a demand for bulls with good records behind them is shown when the bulls from long-time record dams brought $425 and the bulls from untested dams sold for $121.

While considerations other than records may legitimately enter—such as family, physical condition and age, one cannot avoid the conclusion, says Professor Hopper, that records are of major importance.

Dairy Hints

Enough grain should be fed to keep the calf growing rapidly.

A cow that will not give more milk than her feed costs had better be sold for beef.

The heifers should not be bred before they are sixteen to eighteen months old.

For a man to succeed in the dairy business, he must stay with it year in and year out.

Regularity of hours in feeding and milking is an important factor in making dairymaking more profitable.

At six months or before, the bull calves should be separated from the heifers to prevent accidental breeding.

The cream separator should receive attention immediately after use. With hot water available, and a little washing powder, the cleaning up will not prove burdensome as it often is when this job is delayed.

With bucket-fed calves skim milk may be and usually is continued until the calves are eight to twelve months old.

Under ordinary conditions the cow should be fed six weeks at least and if in poor flesh, two months is better.

This is the season of fall-calving. Extra care of the cow at this time will repay the dairymen. Her grain ration should consist of laxative and cooling feeds; such as ground oats, bran and linseed meal.

The Woman Fate Chose for Him

By LEETE STONE

HARRY VALLON, after five years of signal success as a singer, suddenly made up his mind one night that he was tired of this life with its rigid requirements. He had saved money for a long time. So, as the generous applause of his audience that night died down, he resolved to drop from sight; to seek some sequestered spot of peaceful outline where he could fish, eat alone, sleep, who solitude, and dream—principally dream.

Alice Revelle was a musical comedy actress who had but recently completed the drilling grind of a year's run in New York in a popular hit, and a six month's road tour. She, too, had been judicious in the matter of earnings; and she, too, was weary of applause, garish din, bright lights and artificial enthusiasms. So she decided to go somewhere and lie full length on a carpet of pine needles, and read for hours at a time something besides the sides of a part; somewhere where there was the thrill of early morning birds and the scent of shy wild flowers.

Two persons who had arrived at a similar decision; one near the West coast and one near the East coast; just two lonely pawns on the checker-board of life whom a for once benevolent Fate had decided to join, in spite of the fact that neither of them was aware of the other one's existence.

Fate, not merely coincidence, led them both to different renting agents in New England; Fate whisked them past each other one April morning on the same stretch of highway in separate motors; Fate ensconced them both in dusty, long deserted little cottages situated at opposite ends of a ridge that curved like a sharp scimitar above a gentle valley.

Suavely gracefully from end to end of the valley ran a stream that glistened like silver in the sun and genial warmth of May. Square in the center of the valley there was a country crossroad, with its usual wistful characterization of two or three tin mail boxes, perched on their round, rough posts. From this juncture one road ran by Harry Vallon's snug eyrie of dreams high in the pines; the other wound its way by the quiet retreat chosen by Alice Revelle.

A thousand and one ways, considering this fortuitous arrangement, that these two young and weary souls, seeking to weave a web of solace with the loom of solitude, might have met if there had been only coincidence to reckon with. But Fate—dictator of marriages made in Heaven—bides time until the arrival of the moment psychological.

The natural, stereotyped method would have been for them to exchange casual greetings at the crossroad mail boxes where, by the laws of average, they should have met. Strangely enough, however, neither of them having parents living and but a few intimates, each had left behind no forwarding address for these weeks of blessed retirement from the world of responsibility.

The splashing cadence of the little stream lulled Alice to slumber early, and awakened her softly betimes in melodious harmony with the twitter of dawn birds. After light breakfasting she would hasten with one of her cherished assortment of romantic novels to the base of a great nearby pine where she would lie reading the entire day.

And that identical music of nature would serve Harry Vallon as the perfect accompaniment to his restless, yearning thoughts that kept him awake until far into the night. Thus he slept until very late in the morning. Then his habit was to follow down the stream with his rod and a few worms in the hope of a trout to fry for evening bite. It was seldom he caught one; but that did not matter, for Harry Vallon was a devotee of the philosophy of fishing rather than the fact.

It happened that one very torrid night in young July, Alice Revelle was unusually restless and sleepless. The song of the brook on its way to the sound and sea seemed to call her persistently instead of lulling sleep. So persistent was the summons that she rose, dressed and sought a little glen of streaming moonlight which was split in two by the relentless little stream that Fate had chosen for the quiver of Cupid's arrow.

As if it had all been humanly planned, Harry Vallon was there—who else? Sitting crosslegged on a huge flat rock. A frequent retreat of his, for there he found the peace and reserve that were later to carry him to the peak of a brilliant concert career. He was singing to himself, softly, in a vibrant baritone: "Valleys or hills with their sunset or dawn; Over them all your love carries on, Singing or silent—you, only you! Life's richest blessings—you, only you!"

"Please, oh please! Sing that again, won't you?" And Harry Vallon leaped to his feet and whirled to face the woman Fate had chosen for him.

The SEA BRIDE

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

THE ROMANCE OF AN EVENTFUL WHALING CRUISE

FAITH KILCUP marries Captain Noll Wing, skipper of the whaler, "Sally Sims," a man much older than herself. After a wedding supper aboard the boat, Faith and Noll sail away. Among the crew are Dan'l Tobey, second mate, who has loved Faith since childhood, and Roy, Faith's brother. There is little privacy, but Faith is content with Noll's love. Reminiscing, Faith recalls her childhood admiration for Noll's strength which led to love.

CHAPTER IV
WHEN Noll came down into the cabin Faith was waiting for him. She had put on a dressing-gown, a warm and woolly thing that she and Bess had made of a heavy blanket, to protect her against the chill winds of the sea. Her braids were upon her shoulders, her hair parted evenly above her broad brow. Her eyes were steady and sweet and calm. Noll, studying her while his heart leaped, saw, where the dressing-gown parted at her throat, a touch of white, a spray of brodered blossoms which Faith herself had made, with every stitch a world of hope and dreams.

Faith lifted her eyes and came closer to him. He took her roughly in his arms, and she lifted one arm and threw it around his thick neck and drew his face down. "Ah, Noll," she whispered proudly. Faith Wing fitted easily into the life aboard the "Sally Sims," as the whaler worked eastward before starting on the long southerly slant that would bring her at last to her true hunting-grounds. The mates saw Faith daily as a pleasant figure in the life of the cabin; the boat-steerers and the seamen and greenies caught glimpses of her, now and then, when she sat on deck with sewing, or a book, or with idle hands and thoughtful eyes. Faith, on her part, studied the men about her, and watched over Noll, and gave herself to the task of being a good wife and helpmate to him.

The first weeks of the cruise were arduous ones, as they are apt to be on a whaler, for of the whole crew more than half were green hands recruited from the gutters, the farms, the slums—weak men, in many cases, rotted by wrong living; slack-muscled, jangle-nerved; weak men who must be made strong, for there is no place for weakness in a whaler's crew.

It was the task of the mates to make these weaklings into men. The greenies must learn the rigging; they must learn their duties in response to each command; they must be drilled to their parts in the boats and prepared for the hunts that were to come. Your novice at sea has never an easy time of it; he learns in a hard school, and this is apt to be especially true upon a whaler. While the methods of the officers differed according to the habit of the officer, they were never gentle.

Cap'n Wing watched over all this, took a hand here and there. And Faith, quietly in the background, saw a new Noll, saw in each of the officers a man she had never seen ashore.

Noll was the master, the commander. When his voice bellowed along the decks even the greenest man leaped and desperately strove in his efforts to obey. Noll was the dominant man, and Faith was pleasantly afraid of him and his roaring tones. She loved being afraid of him.

There were four officers aboard the "Sally Sims." These four, with Roy—in his capacity of ship's boy—lived with Noll and Faith in the main cabin. They were Faith's family. Big Henry Ham, the mate, was a man of slow wit but quick fist; a man with a gift of stubbornness that passed for mastery. The men of his watch, and especially the men of his boat, feared him acutely. He taught them this fear in the first week of the cruise by the simple teachings of blows. Thereafter he relaxed this chastisement, but held a clenched fist always over their cowering heads. He had what passed for a philosophy of life to justify this.

Dan'l Tobey, the second mate, was a man of another sort. Faith was startled and somewhat amused to find what a difference there was between Dan'l afloat and Dan'l ashore. Ashore, he was a round-faced, freckled, sandy-haired boy with no guile in him; an impetuous, somewhat helpless and inarticulate boy. Afloat, he was a man; reticent, speaking little, speaking to the point when he spoke at all. He showed, in the character of his men, playing upon them as a musician plays upon his instruments.

Of the five men in his boat, not one but might have whipped him in a stand-up fight. Nevertheless, he ruled them. This one he dominated by cutting and sarcastic words that left the man abashed and helpless; that one he flattered; another he joked into quick obedience.

Dan'l had, Faith decided, more mental ability than any man aboard—short of her Noll. He ruled by his wits, and this the more surprised her because she had always thought Dan'l more than a little stupid. She watched the unfolding of the new Dan'l with keener and keener interest as the weeks dragged by.

James Tichel, the third mate, was a thin little old man, given to occasional bursts of tigerish rage in which he was the match for any man aboard. In his second week he took the biggest man in his boat and beat him into a helpless, clucking wreck of bruises. Thereafter there was no need for him to strike a second time.

Willis Cox was fourth mate. He was a youngster; this his first cruise in the cabin. He had been promoted from the fo'c's'le by Noll Wing on Noll's last voyage. By the same token, he worshiped Noll as a demigod with the enthusiasm of youth.

All these men had been changed, in subtle ways, by their coming to sea. Faith, during the first weeks, was profoundly puzzled and interested by this transformation. There was a new strength in all of them which she marked and admired. At the same time there were manifestations by which she was disquieted.

Noll Wing and her Noll—had changed with the rest. He had changed not only in his every-day hours of day and night, when the weather was bad or the business of whaling engrossed him. Faith, without being vain, had that reverence and respect for herself which goes by the name of modesty. Her body was as sacred to her as her soul. The necessity that they were under of dressing and undressing in a tiny room not eight feet long was a perpetual torment to her.

She had been, when she married, prepared for disillusionment.

Faith was not a child; she was a woman. She had the wisdom to know that no man is a heroic figure in a nightshirt. But she was not prepared to discover that Noll, who walked among men as a master, could fret at his wife like a nervous woman.

This fretfulness manifested itself more than once in the early stages of the voyage. For Noll was growing old, and growing old a little before his time because he spent his life too freely. He was, at times, as querulous as a complaining old man. Because he was apt to be profane in these moods, Faith tried to tell herself that they were the stormy outbreaks of a strong man. But she knew better.

When Noll, after they lost their second whale, growled to her: "Damn Tichel! The man's losing his pith. You'd think a man like him could strike a whale and not let it get away."

Faith knew this was no just accusation against Tichel but an out-and-out whine of irritability. She knew this, but would not admit it, even in her thoughts.

Another matter troubled her. Noll Wing was a drinker. She had always known that. It was a part of his strength, she thought, to be able to drink strong liquor as a man should. But aboard ship she found that he drank constantly, that there was always the sickly-sweet smell of alcohol about him.

And at times he drank to stupefaction, and slept, loglike, while Faith lay wide-eyed and ashamed for him in the bunk below his. She was sorry, but because she trusted in Noll's strength and wisdom, she made no attempt to interfere.

More than once, when Noll fretted at her while other were about, she saw Dan'l Tobey's eyes upon her, and at such times she took care to look serene and proud. Dan'l must not so much as guess it if Noll should ever make her unhappy.

But—Noll make her unhappy? The very thought was absurd. He was her Noll; she was his. When they were wedded she had given herself to him, and taken him as a part of herself, utterly and without reservation. He might fail her high expectations in little things; she might fail him. But for all that they were one, one body and soul so long as they both should live.

She was as loyal to him, even in her thoughts, as to herself. For this was Faith; she was Noll's forever.

That there is a demand for bulls with good records behind them is shown when the bulls from long-time record dams brought $425 and the bulls from untested dams sold for $121.

While considerations other than records may legitimately enter—such as family, physical condition and age, one cannot avoid the conclusion, says Professor Hopper, that records are of major importance.

Dairy Hints

Enough grain should be fed to keep the calf growing rapidly.

A cow that will not give more milk than her feed costs had better be sold for beef.

The heifers should not be bred before they are sixteen to eighteen months old.

For a man to succeed in the dairy business, he must stay with it year in and year out.

Regularity of hours in feeding and milking is an important factor in making dairymen more profitable.

At six months or before, the bull calves should be separated from the heifers to prevent accidental breeding.

The cream separator should receive attention immediately after use. With hot water available, and a little washing powder, the cleaning up will not prove burdensome as it often is when this job is delayed.

With bucket-fed calves skim milk may be and usually is continued until the calves are eight to twelve months old.

Under ordinary conditions the cow should be dry six weeks at least and if in poor flesh, two months is better.

This is the season of fall-calving. Extra care of the cow at this time will repay the dairyman. Her grain ration should consist of laxative and cooling feeds; such as ground oats, bran and linseed meal.

Valuable City Forests

Heidelberg, Germany, has a city forest of 8,300 acres dating back to 1392, which produces more than 30,000 cords of wood annually, while that of Zurich, comprising 4,200 acres and maintained for ten centuries, yields an annual income of $10.25 an acre.

The Woman Fate Chose for Him

By LEETE STONE

(Copyright.)

HARRY VALLON, after five years of signal success as a singer, suddenly made up his mind one night that he was tired of this life with its rigid requirements. He had saved money for a long time. So, as the generous applause of his audience that night died down, he resolved to drop from sight; to seek some sequestered spot of peaceful outline where he could fish, eat alone, sleep, woo solitude, and dream—principally dream.

Alice Revelle was a musical comedy actress who had but recently completed the drilling grind of a year's run in New York in a popular hit, and a six month's road tour. She, too, had been judicious in the matter of earnings; and she, too, was weary of applause, garish din, bright lights and artificial enthusiasms. So she decided to go somewhere and lie full length on a carpet of pine needles, and read for hours at a time something besides the sides of a part; somewhere where there was the trill of early morning birds and the scent of shy wild flowers.

Two persons who had arrived at a similar decision; one near the West coast and one near the East coast; just two lonely pawns on the checker-board of life whom a for once benevolent Fate had decided to join, in spite of the fact that neither of them was aware of the other one's existence.

Fate, not merely coincidence, led them both to different renting agents in New England; Fate whisked them past each other one April morning on the same stretch of highway in separate motors; Fate ensconced them both in dusty, long deserted little cottages situated at opposite ends of a ridge that curved like a sharp scimitar above a gentle valley.

Swerving gracefully from end to end of the valley ran a stream that glistened like silver in the sun and genial warmth of May. Square in the center of the valley there was a country crossroad, with its usual wistful characterization of two or three tin mail boxes, perched on their round, rough posts. From this juncture one road ran by Harry Vallon's snug eyrie of dreams high in the pines; the other wound its way by the quiet retreat chosen by Alice Revelle.

A thousand and one ways, considering this fortuitous arrangement, that these two young and weary souls, seeking to weave a web of solace with the loom of solitude, might have met if there had been only coincidence to reckon with. But Fate—dictator of marriages made in Heaven—blides time until the arrival of the moment psychological.

The natural, stereotyped method would have been for them to exchange casual greetings at the crossroad mail boxes where, by the laws of average, they should have met. Strangely enough, however, neither of them having parents living and but a few intimates, each had left behind no forwarding address for these weeks of blessed retirement from the world of responsibility.

The splashing cadence of the little stream lulled Alice to slumber early, and awakened her softly betimes in melodious harmony with the twitter of dawn birds. After light breakfast she would hasten with one of her cherished assortment of romantic novels to the base of a great nearby pine where she would lie reading the entire day.

And that identical music of nature would serve Harry Vallon as the perfect accompaniment to his restless, yearning thoughts that kept him awake until far into the night. Thus he slept until very late in the morning. Then his habit was to follow down the stream with his rod and a few worms in the hope of a trout to fry for evening bite. It was seldom he caught one; but that did not matter, for Harry Vallon was a devotee of the philosophy of fishing rather than the fact.

It happened that one very torrid night in young July, Alice Revelle was unusually restless and sleepless. The song of the brook of its way to the sound and sea seemed to call her persistently instead of inviting sleep. So persistent was the summons that she rose, dressed and sought a little glen of streaming moonlight which was split in two by the relentless little stream that Fate had chosen for the quiver of Cupid's arrow.

As if it had all been humanly planned, Harry Vallon was there—where? Sitting crosslegged on a huge flat rock. A frequent retreat of his, for there he found the peace and reserve that were later to carry him to the peak of a brilliant concert career. He was singing to himself, softly, in a vibrant baritone: "Valleys or hills with their sunset or dawn;

Over them all your love carries on; Down in the meadow or close to the blue,

Singing or silent—you, only you! Life's richest blessings—you, only you!"

"Please, oh please! Sing that again, won't you?"

And Harry Vallon leaped to his feet and whirled to face the woman Fate had chosen for him.
